$10,000 FINE FOR ALL SHIPS SELLING LIQUOR PROPOSED

Representative Edmonds to Offer Plan in Place of the Bankhead Amendment Denying Subsidy.

BOARD ATTACKED IN SENATE AND HOUSE

Senator Caraway Describes Policy as "Foolish and Dishonest" — Lasker Silent on Latest Busch Letter.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 16.—With Republican members of the House Merchant Marine Committee understood to have virtually agreed to oppose the proposal to stop the sale of liquor on American ships by denying the Federal aid provided in the subsidy bill to ships on which such sale is made, another amendment to the bill proposing a fine for the sale of liquor on any ship during a voyage starting or ending at an American port was before the committee today for consideration.

The latest proposal, offered by Representative Edmonds, Republican of Pennsylvania as a substitute for the first amendment presented by Representative Bankhead, Democrat of Alabama and discussed informally, would have the effect of putting American ships on parity with those of nations not having prohibition. In addition to providing a fine of $10,000 for the first and second offense, the final penalty would be to prohibit the entrance of a ship to American ports. The view was expressed in some quarters that this conflicted with many of the nation's commercial treaties.

Methodist Board Takes Hand.
The board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church interjected a new element into the controversy today by making public a letter written last November by D. E. Brundage, then advertising manager of the Shipping Board vessel. Such sale was frankly acknowledged, and defended by Chairman Lasker Wednesday in reply to the Anheuser-Busch company.

The Methodist board said the Shipping Board's attention was called by Walter F. Ballinger of Philadelphia, to United States Mail line advertisements in the Paris Daily Mail and in the Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune, specifically stating that "choice wines and liquors" were available aboard vessels of the line.

Attacks in House and Senate.
Meanwhile, in the executive branch there had been no developments beyond the indication that the Treasury Department that Attorney General Daugherty might be asked soon for a ruling on the legality of liquor selling on American ships. Daugherty said such a request, if made, would be acted on as speedily as possible.

Liquor selling on American ships was discussed in both the House and Senate. Representative Cooper, Republican of Ohio, declared that no one would deny "that the lawbreaker and bootlegger in our land will be encouraged to carry on his work by reason of the policy of the Shipping Board."

Representative Upshaw, Democrat of Georgia, described the position of the Shipping Board on the matter as "utterly indefensible."

Senator Caraway, Democrat of Arkansas, charged the policy of the board was "childish, foolish and dishonest," and said that when the merchant marine bill came up he would remind the Senate a vote for it was a vote to license saloons on American ships.

Lasker Maintains Silence.
Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board, meanwhile, maintained silence on the matter, and it was indicated at the Shipping Board that he was having detailed the board's policy. He would not reply to the supplementary letter addressed to him yesterday by the Anheuser-Busch company.

There was only informal discussion of the Edmonds proposal, and Edmonds last night had not decided whether to make it a part of the bill or offer it in the House, possibly as a substitute for the Bankhead proposal. It was said that Representative Edmonds had virtually agreed to oppose the Bankhead amendment, and expecting this, Bankhead announced that he would move in the House to recommit the bill with instructions to the committee to bring it back with his amendment precisely as framed.

Definite announcement was made by Chairman Campbell of the Rules Committee that the subsidy bill

Man Outside of Building Loses Balance in Reaching for Sponge.

A middle-aged man, employed in washing windows at the Stephens Lithographing and Engraving Co., Second and Vine streets, fell from the fourth floor window to the sidewalk at 2 p. m. today, and was killed.

The window-cleaning company through which the man was employed said his name was Ruhl, as shown by his record. His first name was said to be Charles, but the employers were not sure of this.

The man was standing in the outside window frame, and lost his balance when he reached for a sponge. A skull fracture and other fractures caused his death.

HEAT INCREASES USE OF WATER

Consumption 30 Per Cent Greater This Week—May Go Higher.

Efforts of heat sufferers to keep cool, by sprinkling their lawns or by making extra trips to the bathtub during the hot weather of this week, have increased the city water consumption about 30 per cent. Water Commissioner Wall said today.

The total pumped through the mains from the service stations yesterday was 134,000,000 gallons. The average daily consumption of water is 105,000,000 gallons. If the hot weather continues the demand for water probably will be increased 50 per cent, Wall said.

WHY MAIL ORDER HOUND BUSINESS WENT TO THE DOGS

"Wooden-Eared" Animal Shipped for Fur Hound by Convicted Dealer, One of Customers Says.

BUYERS TELL OF THEIR EXPERIENCES

One Asserts He Tossed "Cracker-Jack" Hound Out Among Rabbits, Only to Have It Flee.

Using the mails in the marketing of dogs by mail order, in connection with which Arthur E. Humphreys of Tower Hill, Shelby County, Ill., was convicted of fraud Wednesday by a jury in the Federal Court at East St. Louis, seems to have been a lucrative business for Humphreys, as he declared he sold nearly 2500 dogs in the last five years by this method, at prices ranging from $5 to $100 each.

The mail order business in dogs is not a new departure in Southern Illinois, for just three years ago Clarence F. Smith of Altamont was sentenced to three years in prison and fined $250 when his method of doing business in canine pets by mail was investigated by a Federal grand jury.

While Humphreys has been convicted to the satisfaction of postoffice inspectors, some of his customers have learned the costly lesson that it is the better part of prudence not to buy animals, especially dogs, by mail, "sight unseen."

Among those who testified against Humphreys was H. B. Lingo, Mount Victory, O., who saw Humphreys' advertisement in a periodical devoted to sports. Humphreys operated at Tower Hill what he termed the "Westminster Kennels, Home of Quality." This sounded plausible to Lingo, who wanted a fur hound, and he sent Humphreys $90 for such a dog.

Humphreys shipped Lingo a black and tan named Neil, which he described as "positively a first-class fur dog." "Neil will please you after the first few days," the letter added.

Lingo said that when he took Neil out to a tree cone, he behaved as though bored and took no interest in the sporting adventures. He subsequently discovered that she had what is termed in the parlance of dog fanciers a wooden ear, that is to say, she was deaf, and worst of all, she did not possess a musical voice, which is a requisite of dogs trained to hunt fur-bearing animals.

Lingo testified that he returned the dog and Humphreys refused to refund his money, as promised in a letter.

Dog Died Within 24 Hours.

Another victim of Humphreys was H. A. Steffler, Milford, Ind. A dog died 24 hours after arriving at Milford and a second dog shipped by Humphreys was not a rabbit hound, such as Steffler had ordered.

F. W. Zerull of Huntington, Ind., answered Humphreys' advertisement for "cracker-jack rabbit hounds" and received a hound that took no interest in rabbits. He exchanged it with Humphreys for another hound, which had all the earmarks of being the real thing.

Zerull's testimony was that he took this dog out where rabbits were plentiful, when there was a flurry of snow. Rabbits were jumping up all around Zerull, but the hound behaved as though afraid of Zerull's gun. The dog remained close to or behind Zerull, keeping well out of the line of fire.

Finally, in disgust, Zerull seized the hound by the nape of the neck and hurled him at a rabbit that jumped out of some brush at his feet. It was an accurate pitch, as the hound landed squarely on the rabbit, emitted a yelp of fright, disentangled himself from bunny and fled.

Testimony for Humphreys. There were several character witnesses for Humphreys, and they testified he had purchased about "two hundred" dogs from Humphreys that were exactly as represented. Humphreys testified that the whole trouble was that the complainants did not know how to handle dogs.

The case of Humphreys recalls that of Smith, in which the latter was convicted. C. V. Farley, Peru, Ind., wrote for a coon dog, and received the following classic description of the kind of stock Smith had for sale:

"I have a No. 1 coon and skunk dog, 4 years old, that is second to none on treeing coon and baying."

YOUTHFUL WADER FINDS LEG BONE OF MASTODON IN CREEK

Specimen Found Near Dennison, Ill., Regarded as One of Most Perfect Prehistoric Specimens.

PARIS, Ill., June 16.—While Perry Carpenter was wading in a creek on the Urban Farm near Dennison, in Edgar County, he found the well-preserved leg bone of a mastodon. The shoulder blade, which is intact, is three feet eight inches wide. The leg bone attached is about three feet eight inches long and eight inches thick. With the shoulder blade the entire specimen is nearly seven feet long.

Only about two inches of the edges of the clavicle are decayed. The widest part of the bone is 18 inches. Persons who have inspected the bone declare it to be one of the most perfect and best preserved specimens ever found in this part of the country, which is rich in remains of the prehistoric animal life.

ORDINANCE CREATING TAXABLE DISTRICT TO BE RECONSIDERED

Board of Public Service Takes Action After Property Owners Make Protest.

Following a protest from 88 per cent of the property owners in the proposed taxable district to be affected by reconstruction of Bates street, from Grand boulevard to Gravois avenue, the Board of Public Service today voted to reconsider an ordinance creating the district before it is submitted to the Board of Aldermen.

H. L. Weidenmueller, 4985 Tyrolean avenue, representing the boards of directors of Concordia Cemetery and St. Matthew's Cemetery, which were included in the district to be taxed, said the cemetery boards controlled ownership of a majority of the property represented in the opposition. The cost of the cemetery was estimated at $55,000.

Proposed ordinances creating taxable districts for the reconstruction of Clayton avenue, from Vandeventer avenue to King's highway, to cost about $57,200, and for the improvement of 19 alleys in scattered parts of the city, to cost about $105,350, were approved by the board.

FIVE HOME RUNS IN ONE INNING, A WORLD'S RECORD

Galveston, Tex., Players Aided by Wind in Making Long Drives.

By the Associated Press.
WICHITA FALLS, Tex., June 16.—The world's record for home runs in one inning in organized baseball was broken in the Galveston-Wichita Falls (Texas League) game here yesterday when Galveston batters drove out five homers in the fifth inning.

Four of the drives went over the fence and one fell inside. A high thrower, who was carrying the ball over the fence, carried the ball over the fence. The previous home run record was three in one inning.

Catcher Witry and Pitcher Deery opened the inning with drives over the left field fence. The next batter was retired. Third Baseman Moore then hit one over the left field barrier and outfielder Hendricks followed with a terrific drive which bounded off right field fence. The ball bounded back towards the infield, but before it could be recovered, Hendricks had crossed the plate. Second Baseman Connolly then sent one over the right field pailings.

Galveston scored two more home runs before the game was ended, making seven for the game. Hendricks got two of the seven circuit clouts.

COAL MINER LOSES $1000 IN PROVING THAT HE IS HONEST

John Philipich Victim of Old Swindle Based on "Distribution of an Estate to Poor."

INDUCED TO DRAW MONEY FROM BANK

Meets Two Men in Park and Deposits It in Box to Show Good Faith—Packets Later Changed.

John Philipich, a coal miner, 27 years old, 4924 North Broadway, was invited yesterday by a new acquaintance to take a walk to Hyde Park, where cool breezes blow. There they met a third man, just in from Alaska, who said his uncle had a $22,000 gold mine and wanted to die poor, so he had sent his nephew down here to find a few thrifty and honest men to act as distributors to the poor.

Would Philipich like the job? Philipich would. But was Philipich thrifty and honest? Well, Philipich had $1000 in the bank. All right, Philipich should draw it out and bring it to the park.

The three met this morning in the park. Philipich had the $1000, the nephew produced a tin box. He put into it what he said was $700. The other man put in what he said was $1000. Philipich put in what he knows was $1000. The tin box was turned over to him. He was to go home and wait until noon, when the other two, having purchased rail tickets for Clayton, would meet him at the station, would call for him and the tin box.

Before noon Philipich did a little belated thinking. He opened the box and found three bundles of clippings, each with a dollar bill on top. He figured it up and found that he was out $997. He informed the police and was greatly surprised when he was told that this was a swindle frequently worked on thrifty and honest men by thrifty but dishonest men, as related in the newspapers from time to time.

VIENNA, June 16.—The Austrian Government has at last made a resolute move in the direction of financial self-help. It has induced the Rothschild and seven other leading banks to back the promotion of a new bank of issue as soon as possible.

These banks have declared themselves ready to use part of the foreign money they hold to cover the new notes and they will endeavor to gain additional foreign capital. The new bank will take over crown notes now in circulation in exchange for its own notes.

The government believes this agreement and the financial plan which it will soon submit to the National Council will favorably influence credit negotiations with the Anglo-American financial group.

Senator, in Recommending Vice President of Printing Firm, Says He Looks for No Objection to Him.

IS THIRD SUGGESTED FOR REVENUE JOB

Nominee Will Take Place at Sacrifice, but Is "Just the Man I Have Been Looking For," Spencer Asserts.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 20 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The President had before him today a recommendation made by Senator Spencer to Commissioner of Internal Revenue Blair that Arnold Hellmich, vice president of the Hellmich Bros. Printing Co. of St. Louis, be named Collector of Internal Revenue for the Eastern Missouri District.

"Hellmich will take the place at considerable financial sacrifice," said Senator Spencer today. "He is just the sort of man that I have been looking for. I do not anticipate the slightest objection to his confirmation after the name is sent to the Senate by the President."

Hellmich is the third man recommended by Spencer for the collectorship. The first, John P. Leahy, was named by the President and was confirmed but declined to qualify for the position. The President then, at Spencer's suggestion, nominated Nat Goldstein, whose name was withdrawn May 10, at Goldstein's request in the midst of a fight on the appointment due to the nominee's connection with Lowden campaign fund of 1920.

Hellmich Is Vice-President of Printing Concern.

Hellmich, vice-president and secretary of the Hellmich Bros. Printing Co., at Eighteenth and Locust streets, was Harbor and Wharf Commissioner of St. Louis for four years, by appointment of Mayor Kruseman. He lives at 4245 Shenandoah avenue, and has a wife, a son and three daughters, the son being associated with him in business.

He is 58 years old, and has been active in athletic organizations for many years, being a member of the Century Boat Club and the Western Rowing Club. In 1921 he won the 50-yard indoor championship of the Western Amateur Athletic Association at Chicago, and the 100-yard and 220-yard championships here.

In 1917, with Charles Hildebrand as teammate, he made a tandem trip in record time over the De Soto road, then a terror to bicyclists.

MACHINE GUNNERS GUARD ILLINOIS MINE WORKERS

Sixty Men Near Herrin Begn Protection of First Coal Mined Since

By the Associated Press.
HERRIN, Ill., June 16.—Guarded by two lines of men armed with machine guns, 60 men began the mining of coal at the Lester and Sherwood strip mine, six miles east of here, today. It was the first coal mined in Illinois since the miners' strike became effective April 1, and armed sentries guarded the roadway to the scene of work.

Crowds of striking miners gathered on corners, discussing the situation, while other crowds went from town to town "feeling out sentiment." Miners' officials cautioned against any demonstrations, telling the strikers any outbreaks would react to the discredit of the union.

The men who began work today were said to have been brought from the Chicago district. The camp is well stocked with provisions. Surface miners were not directly connected with the miners' strike, but in Illinois all quit work April 1 in sympathy with the pit miners.

20,000 HOMELESS AFTER $2,000,000 LONG ISLAND FIRE

Flames Sweep Half Square Mile of Summer Homes—New York Fireboats Aid in Fight.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 16.—Firemen today were still playing water upon the smoldering ruins that yesterday had been a half square mile of summer dwellings at Arverne, L. I.

More than 400 buildings, from summer homes costing $25,000 to little bungalows worth $2000, and hotels, were destroyed, rendering 20,000 persons temporarily homeless. The property damage is estimated at $2,000,000.

Thousands of homeless families spent the night on the beaches. Every structure in a five-block area was destroyed. In the private residential section, 80 residences valued at from $15,000 to $25,000 each; 75 bungalows, valued at $5000 each, and 15 hotels and boarding houses valued at $40,000 to $50,000 each, were destroyed.

Seven engine companies sent from New York aided the various firefighting companies from beach resorts.

One hundred and fifty children in Israel Orphan Asylum were marched from the building as flames flicked its walls. They were housed in a hotel outside the fire area. The orphanage was destroyed.

A ravine lies in a narrow part of the Rockaway peninsula and stretches across from Jamaica Bay to the sea. The blaze, believed to have started in Hotel Northlea, spread to a little wooden bungalow on the bay side and destroyed several boarding houses. Fireboats sent from New York, fought the fire from the bay.

After three hours the blaze was reported under control. The blaze presented a spectacle that attracted thousands and many of these assembled firemen and residents in removing household goods. An entire section of small bungalows was dynamited in an attempt to arrest the flames and several firemen were hurt in this operation.

Tents and improvised shelters were pitched on the beach and occupied for the night by hundreds whose homes were burned.

Service wires from the lighting plant that furnished power for Arverne and nearby resorts were burned and the section was without light.

He cited further instances of the deportation of Armenians, and said the roads over which they traveled are strewn with bodies.

DEBATE RAGES OVER ADDRESS OF SECRETARY WEEKS

Senator Now Takes Exception to His Statement That Direct Primary Election Is an Evil.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 16.—Debate raged at both ends of the Capitol today over the address made yesterday in Cleveland by Secretary Weeks on some of the dominant tendencies in American government.

Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, speaking in the Senate, took exception to the statement of Weeks that the direct primary is an evil. Declaring the Secretary had made a specific attack against the primaries, the Nebraska Senator called attention to the last Republican and Democratic national conventions, which, he said, had been controlled by "a sick man in Philadelphia and a sick man in the White House."

"The result of elections," he asserted, "was often a choice between evils, with the machinery which controlled the nomination controlling the election as well."

Senator Norris explained that he believed Secretary Weeks was "honest in his desire to abolish the primaries." He added that while Mr. Weeks had been careful to state that he spoke in a personal capacity at Cleveland, that he had "promulgated ideas entirely in harmony with those of the President."

"If I did not believe the people were sufficiently intelligent to govern themselves," the Senator continued, "I would advocate the establishment of a monarchy in the United States. But, the secretary believes the only way to save the country is to stop the demand of the people for self-government."

"The Master of the People," Senator France, Republican, Maryland, interpreted the Secretary's remark in part, as applying to the eighteenth amendment which the Senator declared had made "the government the master of the people." Senators Norris and Borah, Republican, Idaho, contended that the aW Secretary had not referred to the eighteenth amendment and did not have that in mind when he stated that attempts to amend the constitution had signalled failed.

The Nebraska Senator, continuing, declared that partisanship was the "one evil of government if there is one," and added that if the primary "could do away with some of the partisanship on the part of men who are followed blindly and vote as they are told, then God speed the day when the primary may control from the President down."

Senator Norris said he was inclined to agree with the War Secretary that the legislative branch of the Government "was at its lowest ebb." He recalled that he and other Republican Senators had assailed the Democratic majority during the Wilson administration, calling them, he said, "plain rubber-stamp Senators."

"Rubber Stamps on G. O. P. Side."

"I did it," he continued. "I still believe it was true, but now it seems that the rubber stamps are on this (Republican) side of the chamber, for we are told now that we must pass the ship subsidy bill."

Representative Garner, during the House debate, declared that as matters stood now Congress "is trying to get rid of Secretary Mellon and Secretary Weeks is trying to get rid of Congress."

"The question now is who will go first, and I'll put my money on Mellon," he added.

Representative Tinscher, Republican, Kansas, also took exception to portions of Weeks' address.

"Secretary Weeks ought to know about Congress, for he served in both branches," said Tinscher. "After failing to get the Republican presidential nomination in 1916, he was renominated for the Senate in Massachusetts and although it was a Republican year, he was about the only Republican defeated. Then President Harding tried to make a man out of the ex-Senator by putting him in the cabinet, thus giving him an opportunity to come back."

Don't delay the fight against Constipation another day!

Drive constipation out of your family—and with it will go most of the ill humanity is heir to, because authorities tell you 90% of sickness can be traced directly to constipation. Did you know that constipation is the DIRECT CAUSE OF DIABETES and BRIGHT'S DISEASE? Don't minimize the dangers of constipation that threaten you and every member of your family. Fight constipation!

Pills and cathartics only aggravate already dangerous conditions. What you need is BRAN—Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbed. It is heartily endorsed by physicians for constipation! Bran's action is entirely mechanical, but it is positive! Bran sweeps, cleans and purifies, yet it is simply a nature food—a "roughage" that the eliminative tract demands and that assures relief. We guarantee that Kellogg's Bran, if eaten regularly—at least two tablespoons daily, in chronic cases, eat it with each meal—will permanently overcome the most stubborn case of constipation.

Kellogg's Bran, through its regulatory value, makes children grow big and robust; it preserves the health and energy of workers and gives aged relief from constipation, even as nothing else can. Besides, Kellogg's Bran is an unequalled food stimulant.

You will enjoy the deliciousness of Kellogg's Bran, its nut-like flavor adding greatly to the enjoyment of all hot and cold cereals. And, you may taste better raisin bread, graham, rolls, cookies and sodas other health products that can be made with Bran. Buy Kellogg's Bran at grocers!

SUSPECTS HELD AFTER KILLING IN UTAH COAL STRIKE SECTION

16 or 20 Persons Under Military Guard Following Death of Deputy.

By the Associated Press.
SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, June 16.—Sixteen or 20 suspects arrested yesterday in connection with shooting at train near Standardville Wednesday morning in the coal strike region, when a Deputy Sheriff was killed and a mine official wounded, are being held under military guard and will be assigned to duty at Helper.

Helper, which is the center of the coal strike district, has become a military camp and three companies of the National Guard are encamped ready for any emergency or outbreak at any of the many coal camps in Carbon County.

Officers of the United Mine Workers' Union, including W. H. Houston, international organizer, and some of his aids, together with Stylian Stas, Greek Consul for Utah, last night investigated reports that a score of Greek miners had been forced to leave a Spring Canyon pool hall by an armed party, some of whom were masked.

WARD PLEADS NOT GUILTY; IMMEDIATE TRIAL IS REFUSED

Wealthy Baker's Son Arraigned on Indictment Charging First Degree Murder—Denied Preferential Treatment.

FATHER IGNORES JURY SUMMONS

Leaves on Motor Trip to Another State When Called to Give Information on Alleged Blackmail.

WHITE PLAINS, N. J., June 14.—Walter S. Ward pleaded not guilty today when he was arraigned before Supreme Court Justice Morschauser on an indictment charging first degree murder in connection with the shooting of Clarence Peters.

When counsel for the wealthy baker's son requested that he be placed on trial immediately, he was informed by the Court that his case would have to take the same course as that of any other prisoner.

"There are a number of men in jail here who want to be tried," said Justice Morschauser. "Why your man should be preferred, I can't tell."

Ward yesterday was indicted by the Supreme Court grand jury of Westchester County. The investigation of the slaying of Peters, former navy seaman, whose body was found with a bullet hole through his heart on the Kensico reservoir road on May 16, moved as swiftly in a few hours as it had dragged for 30 days before.

Ward was found in the office of the New York City law firm defending him, three hours after the indictment, and taken by a Deputy Sheriff to White Plains, where Justice Morschauser committed him to jail.

Father Ignores Subpoena. The indictment was precipitated by the refusal of George S. Ward, the father, to accept a subpoena and reveal the alleged blackmail plot which the son contended actuated the killing of Peters. Members of the jury were determined that George Ward return from his motor trip in Pennsylvania to the jurisdiction of the county authorities and tell what he knew of the blackmail they informed District Attorney Weeks. In his chambers, Justice Morschauser received a petition from Weeks to conduct an examination to ascertain if Walter Ward, his father, and others had conspired criminally to defeat the ends of justice. The complaint alleged that George Ward left the jurisdiction of the county after his son had told him of the circumstances leading up to the killing of Peters. The District Attorney charged that on information and belief Walter Ward and his father, together with other persons, had willfully and maliciously conspired and intended to defeat the ends of justice. The purpose of the complaint was to bring about an indictment of George Ward and force him to return.

Ralph Ward Questioned. Ralph Ward, brother of Walter, who was under grand jury subpoena, then was summoned before Justice Morschauser, who examined him. Ralph Ward had been excused from giving information before the grand jury because he said all he knew about the case was what his father had told him and, therefore, was hearsay. He was forced to tell in this new line of action what he had heard.

When Ward was told he was to be rearrested, he asked permission to drive to New Rochelle. Ward went into the house and told his wife he had been indicted and was going to jail. She broke down. He kissed his two children, took some toilet articles and clothes and returned to the car, continuing the drive to White Plains.

As Ward entered his cell his lips were seen to quiver. It was the first sign of emotion he had evinced.

A similar charge against Clarry of 4144 Easton avenue was with the other three who were placed in the cell, was when witnesses said he had no part in the assault, but contrary had been demonstrated by companions. There were 15 in the cell at the time of the assault.

GRAND JURY INVESTIGATION OF POLICE HOLDOVER PROMISED

Judge Says Probe "Should and Would" Be Made in View of Prisoners' Assault.

Circuit Judge Franklin Miller yesterday declared a grand jury "should and would" investigate conditions in the holdover at Police Headquarters, following the hearing of evidence of the assault on several prisoners by others while held in a cell on the morning of April 15, last, for which three men were sentenced to terms in the city workhouse of two years each.

The men sentenced were George Welp of 4681 Evans avenue; John Cain, 3618 Cook avenue; and John Hough, 4026 North Grand boulevard. The first two were sentenced by Judge Hogan, after obtaining changes of venue from Judge Miller's court, and Hough by the latter Judge.

A similar charge against Joseph Chary of 4558 Easton avenue, who was with the other three when they were placed in the cell, was dropped when witnesses said he had taken no part in the assault, but on the contrary had remonstrated with his companions. There were 15 men in the cell at the time of the assaults.

1563 KILLED IN RAIL ACCIDENTS IN STATE IN 7 YEARS

In This Period 28,822 Others Were Injured by the Steam and Electric Lines of Missouri.

FIGURES OBTAINED BY SERVICE BODY

Of the Total 295 Were Killed and 984 Hurt in Grade Crossing Accidents on Steam Roads.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, June 16.—More than 30,000 persons, the population of a city like Joplin, for instance, have been killed and injured in electric and steam railway accidents in Missouri in the last seven years, according to figures obtained from the records of J. L. Harrop, chief engineer of the Missouri Public Service Commission.

The most complete account obtainable shows a toll of 1563 killed outright and 28,822 injured, a total of 30,385. An accurate count would be considerably higher, as these records cover only from nine to 11 months of the various years, 1915-1921 inclusive. Of the total 295 were killed and 984 injured as the result of grade-crossing accidents on steam roads, while 157 others were killed and 440 injured in somewhat similar accidents on electric lines.

The accidents on electric lines include those on urban, interurban and suburban lines and for the purpose of this tabulation have been classified as "grade-crossing accidents" where those injured or killed were neither passengers, employees or trespassers. The 157 killed and 440 injured in grade-crossing accidents, by electric lines, however, in addition to mishaps at highway intersections also includes persons run down by street cars, in the middle of a block, for instance, in the larger cities, so, viewing these street-car mishaps whether at street crossings or between them, as grade-crossing accidents, in addition to those on steam railroads, the total is 452 killed and 2335 injured.

All electric and steam lines in the State are required by law to report accidents to the Public Service Commission, to the end that the commission may have the causes of those mishaps investigated if such action is deemed advisable. In this way the commission obtains the information which often brings about the installation of safety devices of various sorts to prevent recurrence of similar accidents. Hundreds of grade crossings have been either eliminated or made safer by the installation of warning signals, watchmen or gates, and numerous other steps designed to lessen hazard to employees, passengers and the public generally have come about in this way, according to Harrop.

Passengers, employees, grade crossing victims and trespassers rank in the order named in number of injured, while among the killed trespassers, grade crossing victims, employees and passengers is the order.

The figures are as follows: Killed, 671 trespassers, 452 at grade crossings, 358 employees, 82 passengers. Injured—11,892 passengers, 10,644 employees; 5385 at grade crossings; 901 trespassers; killed on steam lines, 1833; killed on electric lines, 225; injured on steam lines, 14,023; injured on electric lines, 14,748.

Elimination of grade crossings, cause of frequent fatalities, has proceeded with more rapidity in cities and towns and their vicinity than in rural communities, the more populous communities having more readily met their share of the heavy expense of subway viaducts and other methods of achieving grade separation.

The public service commission, however, had a powerful ally in obtaining grade separation in rural communities, in the highway department, and in automobile and good road associations throughout the State. This movement, however, is yet in its infancy in rural Missouri, if its progress is judged by the ratio of crossings where the grades of railroads and highways have been separated to those where the grades remain the same.

At least one of the East-to-West cross State roads which is being urged for selection as part of the State primary highway system, has a large number of dangerous grade crossings.

One Killed in L. & N. Accident. By the Associated Press. CANOE, Ala., June 16.—One dead, another fatally injured and several others hurt slightly was the toll of the wreck yesterday when Louisville & Nashville passenger train No. 4 ran through a siding at Hixbert, nine miles north of here, early this afternoon. All passengers escaped.

5-MINUTE OVATION FOR LONG IN CASS COUNTY500 Men and Women Hear Opponent Speak at Harrisonville.

HARRISONVILLE, Mo., June 16.—An audience of 500 men and women gathered here yesterday when he began his speech. It was a noisy welcome, following two short speeches of introduction by Judge Andrew Whitsett, who presided, and Mrs. M. P. Overholzer, who introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Overholzer refrained from prodding her husband, Senator James A. Reed, on any of the issues that have come between them and he did not challenge for party irregularity. That was done for him in a new way by Mrs. Overholzer. Mrs. Overholzer, the wife of a physician who is a Republican, referred to Reed as "unplacable co-worker of Senator Lodge, Johnson and Borah" and said that Missouri democracy needed a man in the Senate who could be depended upon to represent the party.

Judge Whitsett's remarks cast an entirely new light on the Cass County situation. He said the campaign for nomination between Reed and Long was a family affair.

"We will listen to both candidates," he said, "and vote for the one we like best and we will vote for the winner at the election in November. That's where I stand." He added, challengingly, "His last remark was applauded vigorously, indicating the opposition to Reed is not as bitter as in other counties."

Long's speech was received with applause. He emphasized again the plight of business and the farmers particularly, because of the mis-handling of affairs by the Republicans after the war. The League of Nations, the Versailles Treaty and mention of Woodrow Wilson brought forth stormy applause.

Long was met at Creighton early yesterday by a committee of Cass County Democrats and taken on a 100-mile tour of the county. He made two speeches—at Belton and Archie.

Tonight Long will speak at Moberly. He intends, he says, to bring in some new material in his fight for the nomination, but denies that it will have any bearing on the prohibition question.

REED IN SPEECH AT CLINTON
INSINUATES PARTY MAY LOSE
IF HE IS BEATEN IN PRIMARY

Audience of 1500 Grows Colder as Meeting Progresses and Senator Launches Attack on League of Nations.

BY CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of The Post-Dispatch.

CLINTON, Mo., June 16.—Senator Reed's meeting in Clinton last night was a very different sort of a political meeting from any held up to this time in the campaign. The local speaker who introduced Reed delivered a spirited attack on former President Wilson and Reed himself made the beginning of his speech more an attack on the League of Nations than a defense of his opposition to the league.

The audience which greeted Reed with moderate applause when he first appeared on the platform, grew colder as the meeting progressed, and the applause was limited to Reed's spectacular flights of oratory on the value of American soldiers and similarly popular subjects.

It was an audience of slightly more than 1,500 persons, some of whom had driven long distances. One small group drove 40 miles from their homes in St. Clair County, and one man, Berg Ragland, a farmer, walked 15 miles into town to attend.

Reed was introduced by Prof. Richard K. Phelps, principal of the Clinton High School, and during the summer months a teacher in the State Normal School in Springfield. Phelps praised Reed highly, saying he combined all the virtues of West, Cockrell and Stone.

"Party Loyalty Unassailable." "Reed's record for party loyalty is unassailable," said Phelps, "which is more than can be said for some of those who are fighting him."

Phelps quickly launched into his attack on Wilson and the crowd began calling for Reed and demanding that Phelps stop speaking. Reed raised his hand in an attempt to silence the audience and quietly told Phelps to proceed.

"President Wilson," Phelps said, "was nominated on a platform which demanded free trade for American vessels engaged in coastwise traffic and using the Panama Canal. A short time after his election and without offering a reason, Wilson asked that the American ships be compelled to pay the tolls. He then explained that Reed had opposed the tolls for American ships, notwithstanding obligations in treaties with other countries."

He defended Reed's course on the Federal Reserve Act, on suffrage and on the Maternity bill. He said President Wilson "flopped" on suffrage, but that Reed did not.

"I do not believe," he said, "that the cheap demagogic appeal being made by his opponents will have any effect on the women."

On the maternity bill, Phillips said, nobody agreed with the bill as introduced, "except a few freaks."

Attack's Long's Party Services. Reed attacked Long's party services as he has done in other speeches, saying that Long never had been heard in speeches for the Democratic party until he began to run for office, while there never had been a campaign in 10 years when he (Reed) had not responded to every appeal for his services.

"When I look around me now," Reed said, "I see that Senator Stone is gone and Champ Clark is gone. And Gov. Denehy's health will not permit him to get actively into the campaign. I see the men who took charge of the Democratic machinery two years ago who heaped on me me every abuse possible, who hindered me, who took me out of the party to an inglorious defeat by 150,000. I see the same men asking the Democrats again to nominate the same ticket and again to let them lead the party to certain defeat."

This was the first time Reed had gone so far in his argument for recognition as to insinuate that his defeat in the Maternity and Long's nomination would result in the defeat of the Democratic ticket. His friends have been using that as one of their principle arguments, but not before has Reed publicly taken that position.

Defends 1920 Campaign Record. Attempting to justify his failure to participate in the 1920 campaign for the Democratic ticket, Reed also for the first time recited his version of the negotiations conducted by Chairman Fawcett of the Democratic State Committee with him to induce him to speak. The negotiations, it will be remembered by those in touch with political affairs during the campaign, ended in failure.

"Suppose that I did remain out of one campaign," Reed said, "I took part in 16 others, and so my ratio would be 16 to 1, while I never heard them raise their voices in any one of the 16."

"Now, why did I not take part in that campaign? Certain gentlemen during a course of two or three years undertook to have the State Committee read me out of the Democratic party. The State Committee had no right to interfere with my course in the Senate, but it attempted to read me out of the party because of my actions in the Senate."

"They knew they were injuring the Democratic party, but they didn't care anything about that if by pulling me down they could raise themselves high enough to be seen for the first time."

Wanted Committee Vote. "About 20 days before the close of the 1920 campaign the chairman of the State Committee, Mr. Long, asked me to make speeches saying the ticket was going to be defeated."

"If I was not a Democrat, why did they ask me to make speeches for the Democratic ticket? Were they going around to get just anybody? I said I would speak, but I wanted a vote of the committee asking me to speak. I did not intend they should say if the ticket was defeated that I had injured myself into the campaign and that I had defeated the ticket."

"Well, they debated for six or seven days whether the committee would ask me to speak. Some thought they could win without me, and they wanted to, if they could. Now, I ask you, was it possible for me to go out under those circumstances and attempt to win the fight?"

He repeated his attack on Long as a candidate. "Who runs dry in the country and wet in the city?" as he did in his Mexico speech last Saturday, and again compared him to a peculiar animal, half camel and half fish. He said Long had a campaign manager in St. Louis who was he did in his Mexico speech last Saturday, and again compared him to a peculiar animal, half camel and half fish. He said Long had a campaign manager in St. Louis who was he did in his Mexico speech last Saturday, and again compared him to a peculiar animal, half camel and half fish.

"Let's have done with this hypocrisy," Reed said. "Let's know what this candidate's position is." But again Reed failed to explain his own position on the wet and dry question.

"League a Dead Issue." On the League of Nations he said:

state north of the Mason and Dixon line and that the solid South would be broken. It certainly is now a dead issue.

"The league as organized has utterly failed to function in a single important instance. The conference at Genoa failed.

"If the league with 48 nations cannot function, then it follows that we were to have done all the work, furnished all the brains, furnished all the money and were to have taken all the responsibility.

"I have nothing to say against those who fell in with the idea. It was a seductive one. But John Sharp Williams explained it all in a line one day.

"He said 'We can have peace on earth and good will toward men and abolish all wars, and all we will have to do is to change the hearts of the men and women in the world.' Yes, that's all that would have been necessary for the League of Nations theory to have worked out.

"We were idealistic, while all the other nations were practical. Our theory was that all men would be brothers, and their practical theory was to grab all the territory they could. England took more land than the banners of Julius Caesar floated over. Do you want to make that an issue again? How many times do you want to get licked?
Once ought to be enough."

Entertained by Millionaire.
Reed was entertained in Clinton by John A. Van Cleave, a young man who inherited valuable oil properties in the Burk Burnett field from his father, and who is rated as several times a millionaire.
Even the strongest Reed supporters admit that at the present time

Long is much stronger in Henry County than is Reed, but they insist that many changes are taking place and that by the time of the primary the Reed strength will have grown to proportions which will assure him
the county.

Surveying the entire situation,
however, it appears that Henry County is about the same as nearly all the counties visited thus far in the campaign, approximately two to one for Long, though the active Long workers contend that the sentiment is even stronger than that for their candidate.

As usual, nearly all the members of the Democratic County Committee are supporting Long, the statement by one member being that only two of the 19 members are for Reed.
The women here are counted in the Long camp, approximately two to one for Long, though the active Long
workers contend that the sentiment
is even stronger than that for their candidate.

OFFICER OF WOMEN VOTERS' LEAGUE REPLIES TO REED'S REMARKS.

Mrs. T. Walter Hardy of Normandy, acting president of the Missouri League of Women Voters, has written to Senator Reed, replying to remarks which he made regarding the league in his recent speech at Nevada. He spoke there of the "effort to divide the women from the men, and set them up as a separate political party."

Mrs. Hardy says, in her letter, that the League of Women Voters is not the same as the Woman's party, which has headquarters in Washington. The league, she says, is an all-partisan organization with a non-partisan policy, and is an outgrowth of the old suffrage organization.
Regarding the league's attitude toward Reed, which was expressed in a hostile resolution adopted recently, Mrs. Hardy writes:

"We note that you are most insistent in stating that your action in the past should not be interpreted as having been in opposition to the principle of woman suffrage. We wish to draw attention to the fact that no action of yours in the past contributed to the final success of the woman suffrage movement, and we leave it to the women to draw their own conclusions as to how deeply you felt the need of the co-operation of women with men in public matters."

Business Newspapers of New York, was elected secretary-treasurer. Atlantic City was selected as the next tion that the Atlantic City manning award the 1924 convention to London, England.

A resolution was adopted in which a plan calling for four sectional divisions of the association work will charge of four executive secretaries.

Hubert J. Echols, St. Louis, was

INQUEST TO BE HELD IN DEATH OF AGED WOMAN AFTER ACCIDENT

An inquest will be held into the case of Mrs. Sarah M. McClung, 75 years old, of 2722 Cook avenue, a widow, who died at her home Wednesday of injuries suffered April 15 when struck by a Bellefontaine car at Florissant and Ruskin avenues. She suffered a fractured skull, right arm and nose.

Police reported Mrs. McClung was crossing Florissant avenue at the time.

CAPITALISTS TO RULE RUSSIA, COUNT SAYS

Soviet Rule Nearing Its End, According to Nobleman Who Recently Left Country.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

ROME, June 14.—Soviet rule is nearing its end in Russia, and will be replaced by a democracy, account to Count Buturlin, a Russian noble, who has been in Russia ever since the revolution, but has recently come to Rome.

The movement in the direction of a capitalist form of government is based on the elements that Kerensky counted on, but its leaders are a different class. They consist of the wealthy peasants and merchants who have profited under both the old and new regimes.

Count Buturlin says this group counts on Lenin's retirement, in which case his place, they think, will be taken by Foreign Minister Thirsk.

"If 'Titcher' the Count declares, 'although he joined the bolsheviks owing to his advanced ideas, really understands the need of a capitalist Government. He will probably join the new party if, indeed, he is not secretly a member already.'

Count Buturlin formerly owned immense estates in White Russia, but lost them in the first rush of the bolshevik revolution. Of the leaders of the class he thinks will form the backbone of the new Government, he says:

"They are chiefly war and peace profiteers who have made fortunes, both in the latter days of the Czarist regime, and the soviet mud-die. They are especially strong in Moscow, Odessa, and Petrograd, where they had immense chances of profiteering, even under Lenin's rule, especially in selling munitions, food and clothing to the armies."

They are entirely capitalistic in their views, and for Russians are wonderfully free from the fatalism that has hampered counter-revolutionary movements hitherto.

They count members of the old aristocracy in their ranks, but there are fewer than wealthy merchants and peasants who have also grown rich. They are not monarchical, but are determined to build up the country's ruined foundations by opening it to foreign trade without giving away Russian territory."

KATO'S DOMESTIC POLICIES INTEREST JAPANESE PRESS

Less Attention Paid New Premier's Declaration of Foreign Attitude.

By the Associated Press.
TOKIO, June 14.—Japanese newspapers commenting upon Premier Kato's statement of the policies of his government concentrate their attention more upon his declaration of the domestic program than that of his foreign policies. The new premier's promises to effect needed fiscal readjustments, stabilize public opinion, promote foreign trade and extend the advantages of education appear as the most interesting topics to most editors.

The Jiji Shimpo, however, expresses belief that Kato's promise to realize the spirit as well as the letter of the Washington conference engagement and to find a speedy solution of the Siberian question will inspire confidence abroad.

The Hochi Shimbun urges immediate withdrawal of Japanese from Siberia. The Nichi Nichi says the Kato ministry can justify itself by withdrawing Japanese forces from Siberia and granting universal suffrage.

2 HELD AFTER BURGLARY ALARM

Police from the Mounted, Deer Street and Angelica Street stations responded to telephone messages that burglars were breaking into an oil filling station at Marcus and Natural Bridge avenues at 2:30 a. m. today. When the forces met at the scene the supposed burglars had disappeared.

However, Private Watchman Donnelly, who walks that territory, turned over to the police two young men he had caught after a chase to a point in the 4400 block on Lexington avenue. He said the men had driven to the oil filling station in an automobile and two had gotten out. As he approached, he said, the two on foot ran and the third drove the machine away. He chased the two on foot, saying they had stopped to get gasoline and when they saw the watchman they ran because they were frightened.

NAVAL RESERVE PROVIDED FOR

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The Navy Department plans to create a civilian naval reserve force similar to the National Guard, was adopted yesterday by the Senate in accepting an amendment of the Appropriations Committee increasing the public provision of $20,000 to $1,000,000 to begin the work. Under the plan of the department 2,000 officers and 10,000 enlisted men would be mailed into a civilian reserve force paid for one month's service annually and be subject to call to duty. Reservists would receive two weeks' training annually on naval vessels.

Cuban Political Housecleaning On. Havana, June 14.—Cuba began political housecleaning yesterday with the selection of a reform Cabinet and agreement to enact vital legislation before June 30, the end of the fiscal year.

Increase in Auto License Issued. City automobile license tags issued from Feb. 1 to date by City License Commissioner Chapman total $3,571, an increase of 11,513 over the number issued in the corresponding period last year. Chapman estimates that 8000 to 10,000 more license tags will be issued before the close of the year. For the fiscal year ending April 19, $3,718 license tags were issued. The cost of the city license tags is based on horsepower of the motor and ranges from $2 to $12 a car. The motor cycle licenses issued to date total $47. During the last fiscal year $36 were issued.

TELLS HOW HE KILLED WOMAN

Ex-Convict Says He Struck Miss Mallett on Head With Axe

LANSING, Mich., June 16.—George Straub, ex-convict, probably will be taken to Jackson within the next few days for arraignment on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Miss Alice Mallett, as a result of a second confession, authorities here announced today. His return to Jackson will depend largely upon public feeling in that city, where an attempt to lynch him was made.

Straub's second confession, according to O. L. Smith, Assistant State Attorney General, was made late last night and was similar to his previous statement that he determined to attack a woman, hid behind some shrubbery and grappled with Miss Mallett until she was about to overcome him, then struck her on the head with an axe he had picked up on a wood pile.

A negro circus employee, Clarence Meadowlark, was exonerated by Straub, the authorities reported.

VICTORY NOTES WILL BE PAID THROUGH FEDERAL RESERVE BANK

3 1/2 Per Cent Issue, Most of Which Is Held in East, May Be Presented at Any Bank.

Three and three-fourths per cent Victory notes, on which the payment of interest stopped yesterday, may be presented at any St. Louis bank and payment will be made through the Federal Reserve Bank. This announcement was made yesterday by an official of the Federal Reserve Bank, who said that most of the $240,000,000 of the notes outstanding are in the East.

If the Dec. 15, 1922, and May 20, 1923, coupons are detached the notes will be redeemed, but the full face amount of any missing coupons will be deducted. The amounts so deducted will be held in the Treasury to provide for the redemption of such missing coupons as subsequently may be presented.

Applications are being received at the Federal Reserve Bank for gold notes of the United States authorized by Congress in 1917 in exchange for the 4 1/2 per cent Victory notes. The notes bear 4 1/2 per cent interest from June 15, and will be payable Dec. 15, 1925. Interest will be paid semi-annually on Dec. 15 and June 15.

FERTILIZER TO BE MADE FROM BONES ON PRIBILOFF ISLAND

Grinding Plant to Make Plant Food Already Shipped.

(Special Correspondent to The Post-Dispatch.)

SEATTLE, Wash., June 16.—Practical use is made of the mammoth accumulations of seal and walrus bones on the Pribiloff group of islands in Behring Sea. A huge bone grinding plant has gone north on the steamship Victoria and bone-meal fertilizer will be transhipped to the United States.

Uncle Sam's massive bone piles represent a vast store of fertilizer which will now be a heavy item of cargo for vessels plying in the Alaska coast trade. The piles are the accumulations of centuries, and probably are the largest in the world. One of the deposits is over two miles long by a half mile wide, with fully six foot depth exposed and possibly many feet buried in the sand.

The bone piles appear to have been made by the hand of man, but it is really the work small pieces of ice which, when tossed by the waves, shoved the bones further back from the reach of high tides.

PRINTERS IN HOSPITAL AFTER ATTACK BY THREE STRANGE MEN

Firm Had Been Affected by Strike Which Was Never Settled.

Clarence Chatfield, 45 years old, and Chester Wysons, 32, both printers, living at 4042 McPherson avenue, are in the City Hospital, Chatfield suffering from a fracture of the skull and Wysons from lacerations of the scalp and a badly bruised eye, as the result of an attack on them by three strange men as they were going home from work at the George D. Barnard Stationery Co., 1845 Laclede avenue, at 5 p. m., yesterday.

They were walking north on Vandeventer avenue, near McPherson avenue, when the strangers jumped from an automobile, one of them hurled a brick at Wysons. Wysons ducked and the missile knocked Chatfield down. Then the men beat Wysons about the head with "bills." The Barnard Company is one of the printing establishments affected by the strike of printers which began more than a year ago and has never been definitely settled.

BENTONITE, WHICH TAKES INK FROM OLD PAPERS, PLENTIFUL
Large Deposits of Substance Exist in Wyoming—Process Permits Recovery of Newspapers.
CHEYENNE, Wyo., June 16.—Large deposits of bentonite, the claylike substance formed from volcanic ash, used in a process for taking ink from old newspapers so that they can again be used, exist in six Wyoming counties, and there are many smaller deposits in other counties. Owing to the lack of a market for bentonite the State's production has been small, averaging approximately $10,000 worth per year.
Charles S. Hill, State Commissioner of Immigration, last night declared that Wyoming could supply the world with bentonite for many years. "Millions of tons are in sight at the surface," he declared. "Within 48 hours we could begin shipping train loads, loading cars with steam shovels."

PROSECUTOR TO REOPEN CASE DROPPED IN 1921

Action Follows Complaint of Policeman Regarding Dismissal of Two Cases.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Connor today said he would reopen the case of James O'Hare, 3845 Ohio avenue, charged with assault, which was dropped in August, 1921, under the misapprehension that the prosecuting witness did not desire to prosecute.
Connor's announcement followed a complaint by Patrolman Albert Diekmeyer, Wyoming Street District, that two cases in which he had made arrests, including that of O'Hare, had been dropped by prosecuting officers in the Municipal Courts Building.
Connor said he had no independent recollection of the O'Hare case, but referred to a notation in his diary to the effect that the prosecuting witness, Edward Applegate, 16, of 4452 South Broadway, had called at his office and stated that he did not care to prosecute O'Hare.
Applegate, when seen by a Post-Dispatch reporter, denied having appeared at the office of the Assistant Prosecuting Attorney and said that he did not authorize anyone to represent him there. He said that he never had any idea of dropping the prosecution and was waiting to be summoned to court in the case.
"If that is so I will reopen the case," said Connor. "I will direct the patrolman who made the arrest to send Applegate to my office, and if Applegate desires to prosecute I will issue a warrant."

1920 Burglary Case Dropped.
Circuit Attorney Siderer is not concerning himself about the other complaint of Patrolman Diekmeyer regarding a case of burglary which was dropped in 1920. That matter was disposed of before Siderer became Circuit Attorney and the latter says it is not his case. A letter in the Circuit Attorney's files purporting to have been written by the prosecuting witness, Pinkus Brook, 2516 South Broadway, asking that the case be dropped, was pronounced a forgery by Brook.

Thomas Kelley was arrested June 18, 1920, after the front door of Brook's shoe store, then at 2508 Chippewa street had been "jimmied." He was bound over in the Court of Criminal Correction and the case was certified to the Circuit Attorney's office for an information. No information was issued.
Denies Writing Letter.
Inquiry by a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday, following Patrolman Diekmeyer's complaint, disclosed a letter in the Circuit Attorney's files signed "P. Brook," and requesting that the case be dropped. "I never wrote such a letter," said Brook. "And I will take an oath to that. Several friends of Kelley called on me after the arrest and asked me to drop the case, but I told them it was in the hands of the Circuit Attorney and that I had nothing to do with dropping it."

BILL FOR IMPROVEMENT OF THE LOWER COLORADO IS APPROVED

Secretary Fall in Letter to House Committee Favorably Comments on Proposed $70,000,000 Work.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The Swing bill for construction of the Boulder Canyon dam and development of the lower Colorado River basin, at an approximate cost, $70,000,000, was approved yesterday by Secretary Fall in a letter to Chairman Kinkaid of the House Committee on Irrigation of arid lands.
Secretary Fall wrote that a large reservoir in the vicinity of Boulder Canyon could be so used as to eliminate substantially the flood menace of the Colorado River. It would provide, he said, a water supply for the irrigation of large areas of fertile land in the lower river basin "that cannot be developed without the storage of water."

"Of the lands irrigable from the development proposed, 165,000 irrigable acres are public lands in California," he wrote, "and these would be opened with preference rights to former soldiers. Such a reservoir would develop about 700,000 farm turbine horsepower and would have an important relation on the conservation of the oil and coal supply of the nation."

The Swing measure, the Secretary said, affects the entire stream system touching Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah, Wyoming and the republic of Mexico.

AUSTRALIA GETS FAMOUS VAN DYCK OF ENGLISH COUNTERS

England's Art Treasures Are Going to Even More Remote Lands Than the United States.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.
LONDON, May 28.—England's art treasures are going to Oshier and even more remote lands than America. Van Dyck's portrait of Rachel de Ruigny, Countess of Southampton (1603-04) as "Fortune in the Clouds," has been sold by Lady Lucas to the National Gallery of Victoria at Melbourne.

The picture was purchased in 1833 by the tenth Earl of Kent from Lord Darcy, and was long at West Park, so it has remained in the family of the original purchaser, of whom Lady Lucas is the descendant. Rachel de Ruigny belonged to a distinguished Huguenot family, and Thomas, fourth Earl of Southampton (1607-67), was her second husband. She was described as "merry, clever, handsome, discreet and very religious," and was "much courted, yet held her reputation entire."

ROBBERS USE VICTIM'S AUTO IN $2500 HAUL

Tailor: Ceases Regarding Affair as Joke When He Perceives Thing at Ribs Is Pistol.

Cloth valued at $2500 to $3000 was stolen from the tailor shop of Leon Glickberg, 5150 Easton avenue, at 9 a. m. today and carried away in his automobile, he reported to the police. He gave the following account of the holdup to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"I was at my desk, writing checks and a letter porter from the barber shop next door was cleaning up my shop. Two men came in. I didn't pay much attention to them, but one of them walked over to me and asked me in the ribs. 'Get up, get up,' he said. I thought it was a joke, and said, 'Get up yourself,' but he answered: 'Come on you, get up.'"

Where the "Joke" Ended. When I saw that he had been poking me with a revolver and I said, 'Glickberg, mister, don't hurt me,' so he promised not to if I would keep quiet. 'Throw up your hands,' he said. Then they searched me and took $50 from my pockets and the keys to my Palm touring car.

"They made the porter and I kept in a washroom in the rear. When they couldn't find a key to this door they piled tables and chairs in front of it. I heard one robber say, 'Bring that car around to the back,' and heard the machine driven up the alley. Then I heard them carrying out my clothes and suitcases, worth $2500 and $3000. They took just about all I had. Then I heard them drive away and we managed to flush our way out of the door."

Robber Used Car Before. Glickberg's car was the one that was used by the robbers who killed two policemen at the Morris & Co. plant at Broadway and Pestalozzi street, April 22. It was later found abandoned in an alley. The man who drove it has confessed that he and two others stole it.

"That's a bad luck car," Glickberg said today. He lives at 1452 East avenue.

ROMANCE STARTED BY BUTTER PACKAGE IS ENDED BY PARENTS

Kansas Girl Finds Boy's Name on Creamery Box and They Correspond, Father and Mother Finally Preventing Marriage.

By the Associated Press. NEWCASTLE, Ind., June 15.—Miss Esther Stewart, 17-year-old high school graduate of Denton, Kan., is on her way back home today after the unsuccessful termination of her romance begun when she found the name and address of Cecil Thomas of this city on a package of creamy butter shipped from here to the Kansas town. A correspondence was started and culminated in Miss Stewart, who is said to be the daughter of a wealthy Kansas farmer, coming here last week to wed Thomas.

The parents of the girl, however, learning of her plans, wired officials here to stop the wedding and the couple was refused a license. Judge Gause of the Circuit Court then took a hand in the case and, after a conference with the couple, Miss Stewart decided to return to her parents.

RUNAWAY CAUSED BY AUTO

An automobile, stolen from Clifford Payton of 2307 Cote Brillante avenue late Wednesday near Florissant and McLaran avenues, by robbers who promised to leave the car at Grand boulevard and Easton avenue, was recovered yesterday near the Stratford and Jennings roads, St. Louis County.

It had broken down and was being towed into the Wicks garage, 2311 Ehrig avenue, which has the police contract for disabled machines, when in front of 4426 Page avenue the towing chain loosened from the first machine and wrapped around the steering apparatus of the Payton car, causing it to swerve into a wagon of the Eskimo Ice and Fuel Co., 4163 Easton avenue, frightening the team and causing the horses to run away. The team was caught two blocks away. The wagon was damaged $25 and the Payton machine $100.

Child Injured at Play by Auto.

Frances Gonzaga, 10 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gonzaga of 3234 Hickory street, suffered cuts and bruises at 5 p. m. yesterday when knocked down by an automobile driven by Martin Wood of 1433 South Broadway, in front of 948 Hickory street as the child ran into the street after a ball while at play.

STARTLING RUMORS CONCERNING HEALTH

Brothers Said to Be on Way to Switzerland With Special List to See Noted British Newspaper Owner.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
50 Cedar St., London, S. W.

LONDON, June 16.—There was a sensation in the political as well as in the newspaper world last night, following the announcement that two directors of the Associated Newspapers Limited, which includes the Daily Mail, had issued writs for libel against Lord Northcliffe. One director is Walter G. Fish and the other is Sir Andrew Caldo, vice chairman of the Associated Newspapers.

The reports were that Lord Northcliffe and Cecil Harmsworth, brother of Lord Northcliffe, had either run, or were about to go, to Switzerland to see Northcliffe, who is there with Wickham Steed, one of the editors of the London Times.
Northcliffe has not been well, and it was said a specialist may be accompanying the brothers.

Withdrew His Papers.

There are rumors, too, that Lord Northcliffe recently obtained large holdings in the Times. Shortly after he returned from his world tour, Northcliffe announced the withdrawal of all his newspapers from the Associated Newspapers' Association because he did not agree with its proposed policy to reduce wages.

Later he wrote an article for the Daily Mail in which he commented very frankly on the chief newspaper proprietors and in which he had some surprising comments to make on Walter Fish, of whom he said
"The mysterious Mr. Fish referred to might have troubled to send me a wireless before he took a step in the welfare of his country. He is young and he is not troubled much as yet."

Bulletin to Staff.

Northcliffe has a very original method of telling members of his staff what he thinks of them by putting up bulletins in the office. According to a report tonight one of the recent comments referred to Sir Andrew Caldo.

One of the high officials of the Times, it was said this evening, had advised Valentine Williams, former editor of the Daily Mail, that he had severed his connection with that paper.

All political clubs were agog tonight with startling rumors about the health of the "Napoleon of Fleet street," point being given to them by the fact that Northcliffe is resting in Switzerland.

MOUNT EVEREST, May 28, via Simla, India, June 15.—The prospects of climbing via North Col under the special conditions now existing and the way to deal with them best naturally interested Gen.
Bruce's vanguard on May 13. At first we had to make our way up a great white wall of a sub-col, which would avoid excessive steps in heaving the hard ice glistening there.
Happily, Somervell and I were able to find a satisfactory route up to the shelf of the upper wall, where the obvious up ground was presented.

With two lengths of rope, each of 200 feet, fixed at the more difficult places, we were confident that with one or two more such aids to security the porters would be able to pass up and down safely and easily.
From this shelf or broken terrace below the ice battlements crowning the east wall, on which last year's reconnaissance party walked, we gained in a few minutes that part of the col from which the north ridge of Everest springs. Somervell and I roped against the wind, pushed our reconnaissance in the same direction. We had not proceeded many yards when we found the way barred by a crevasse, an obstacle impassable, at least
without ladders.

It seemed far from London to Everest, only to be baffled by a crevasse, and preceded by many yards
when we found the way barred by a crevasse,
an obstacle impassable, at least
without ladders.

We were extremely tired after eating supper and had only reached 23,000 feet. Perhaps after eight or ten days at Camp 3, 21,000 feet, we would be better acclimated and be able to go better, or if some should be weaker, go worse. Where is the limit of acclimation? If we were tired from going up to North Col, now about the porters? What were the chances that any of them would be strong enough to carry an appreciable load above 23,000 feet? What might be expected of the weather?

We felt the sting of the west wind blowing bitter and chill over the pass and the sunless slopes as the afternoon sun waned. It was presumable that no other current of warm air would arise until the non-monsoon reached us from the southwest
—a monsoon bringing moisture and snow. The next day, May 14, there was nothing more to do but to await the loads which the supply porters were bringing up, while we walked over the wide snow basin at the foot of Everest's northeast ridge overlooking Kamama Valley. The clouds hung about the great east face of the mountain, but we distinctly saw the mountains—Sikkim, Kanchen, Janga, Jannu, Kabru—and the Monsoon far away, seeming to above their tops. On the fifteenth the next convoy arrived with Strutt, Morehead and Norton, and there now seemed to be a prospect of an assault in force pushed home by four climbers.

Work Extremely Exhausting.

In any case 300 feet of such work, particularly if hurried, is extremely exhausting. We were glad to rest sheltered at last at midday beneath some rocks at 25,000 feet. There was no question of camping any higher for it was important to send the porters down before they got frost bitten or before the weather changed for the worst. Under other conditions it would have been necessary for some of us to accompany them descending, but now they could safely be sent alone.

There was no visible camping place where we were, so we traversed around the sheltered side, cautiously hoping one would appear.
Eventually the porters with Somervell professed to have found the right place. On a steep mountainside they proceeded to build so as to eventually construct a comparatively flat place for one mummy tent.
Norton and I, feeling that their efforts, proceeding to erect another, but somehow our walls were unworkable. Eventually we found some steep slabs which, in all events, would serve to secure a tent. Here ultimately our tent was pitched in such a way that a slab formed half the floor.

No more uncomfortable arrangement could have been devised, as the inevitable result was to make a man on top of the other as they squeezed them tight together, and so increasing the agony and pain from the sharp rocks forming part of the floor. There at all events were two little tents perched on yards apart in some sort of fashion, depending for security on rocks and containing in each a double sleep-sack for a night's warmth in that cold place.

We were sustained, however, by hopes that each day's mountaineering would be unlike all others, because we should start from a point of the earth's surface higher than any before reached.

Perhaps none of us yet realize how much we already had suffered from the cold.

On the 25th, when the sunlight hit
the tent at 5 in the morning, I immediately got up to rouse the party.
There was no sign of life for the
porters' tent, which was hermetically
sealed, and because of the difficulty of getting a response from the interior, I was obliged to untie an elaborate fastening whereby the flaps were secured.

Porters Were All Ill.

I then learned the porters were all ailing, but eventually established the four of them were seriously ill with mountain sickness, while five were sitting to go on. It was hardly surprising that they felt better when persuaded to come forth from the unventilated tent.

Further delays were caused by cooking operations. It was a task
of energy carried out from the water
produced from the thermos bottle, but it was decided to start the day with a handsome dish of spaghetti. Unfortunately the two cans instead of being gently nursed all night long by
the warmth of a human body,
had been left out in the cold snow
and the dish was eventually produced after a prolonged thawing.

We had hoped in the two hours,
from 6 to 8 in the morning, before
the sun gains such power as to make the mountain lassitude felt that we should gain 1500 feet above North Col, afterward proceeding slowly and halting often to reach 26,000 feet.
As it was we made a later start at 7
and quickly made our way toward North Col, where a broad snow ridge
descends at gently increasing angles.

Necessary to Climb Steps.

It was clear that sooner or later
we would have to climb steps in the ice surface. We were glad to avoid the labor at first by following stones
at the edge of the west side.

TEXT OF ALLEGIANCE OATH PROVIDED FOR IN IRISH CONSTITUTION

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 16.

THE oath of allegiance is provided under article 17 of the Irish Constitution in the following words:

"I do solemnly swear true faith and allegiance to the Constitution of the Irish Free State as by law established and that I will be faithful to his majesty, King George V and his heirs and successors by law and in virtue of the common citizenship of Ireland and Great Britain, and her adherent to and membership of the group of nations forming the British Commonwealth of nations."

the inevitable result was to make

cause we should start from a point

Perhaps none of us yet realize how much we already had suffered from
the cold.

On the 25th, when the sunlight hit
the tent at 5 in the morning, I immediately got up to rouse the party.
There was no sign of life for the
porters' tent, which was hermetically
sealed, and because of the difficulty

Porters Were All Ill.

I then learned the porters were all
ailing, but eventually established the
four of them were seriously ill with
mountain sickness, while five were sitting to go on. It was hardly surprising that they felt better when persuaded to come forth from the
unventilated tent.

Further delays were caused by cooking operations. It was a task
of energy carried out from the water
produced from the thermos bottle, but it was decided to start the day with a handsome dish of spaghetti. Unfortu-

gently nursed all night long by
the warmth of a human body,
had been left out in the cold snow

We had hoped in the two hours,
from 6 to 8 in the morning, before
the sun gains such power as to make
the mountain lassitude felt that we

halting often to reach 26,000 feet.
As it was we made a later start at 7
and quickly made our way toward North Col, where a broad snow ridge
descends at gently increasing angles.

Necessary to Climb Steps.

It was clear that sooner or later
we would have to climb steps in the ice surface. We were glad to avoid the labor at first by following stones
at the edge of the west side.

Morhead was of good cheer, which is a "fit" sign, and seemed the strongest when we first started and we proceeded at a satisfactory pace in the fine early morning. Perhaps after all we should camp at the required height.

Presently I became aware that it was not a perfect day, the sun had no real warmth and a cold breeze sprang up from the west. I found myself kicking my toes against the rocks whenever we passed, finally putting on my spare warm clothes, including a Shetland woolie and a silk shirt. The porters evidently were feeling cold as we went higher.
The edge of the stones ended abruptly, making it clear that we must race for shelter on the east side of the ridge if we wanted to establish a camp.

It is always hard work cutting steps at a high altitude. The proper way in a hard snow is to give one ax blow and then stamp the foot into the hole made, but the blow requires a man's full strength and the Himalayas an amateur probably would prefer to make three kicks of a feebler sort.

BRITISH OFFICIALS PLEASED WITH NEW IRISH CONSTITUTION

State Provisional Govern-

NOTE OF COMPROMISE
IN ALLEGIANCE OATH

Dispatch and New York World.)

and the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, June 16.—The revised Irish Constitution, made public last night, no wistards approved both by the British Government and representatives of the Irish Free State.
What its fate will be at the hands of the Irish Republicans remains to be seen.

It was intimated in the House of Commons last evening, by Austin Chamberlain that there probably would be an autumn session of Parliament, which clearly indicated the feeling of the Government that anxious months ahead may make it necessary for Parliament to be in session to meet another Irish crisis or finally to ratify the treaty after it has gone through a trying ordeal in Ireland.

Document Pleases Lloyd George.

When copies of the Constitution were issued in Downing street, Premier Lloyd George was all smiles in talking to a group of newspaper men. Winston Churchill declared it to be "in accordance with the treaty," and Arthur Griffith, head of the Provisional Government, praised it unstintedly, saying it would enable Ireland to control and develop her own resources and to live her own national life.

There is no equivocation about the oath, which requires any member of the Irish Free State, that nothing shall be done to impair the integrity of citizenship between the two countries, for it uses these terms:

"The virtue of common citizenship of Ireland with Great Britain." But Irish extremists have recently reiterated their intention to refuse to take any oath whatever.

Privy Council Recognized.

It also provides, as demanded by the British Cabinet, that nothing in the Constitution shall impair the right of any person to petition the King for special leave to appeal from the Irish Supreme Court to the privy council, the right of the King to grant such leave, which means that the privy council is the court of last resort, as it is with regard to the dominions.

Winston Churchill refrained from making his promised speech on the Irish situation in the House of Commons in order to cause no embarrassment during the Irish elections.
His British colleagues, however, are of the die-hards, but he easily held them off and gave an undertaking to do so some time next week.

Lungs govern our speed, making the pace a miserable crawl from an Albion point. The snow slope turns out to be a series of slabs lying treacherously under the fresh white mask. We were obliged to get back to our ridge and follow down the snow track. At 4 p. m. Morhead welcomed us back to our camp of the previous night.

Leaving our tents, sleeping sacks,
etc., we proceeded to traverse back along the ledge which we had followed yesterday. Its difficulty was immediately realized, for the fresh snow had made this easy ground a dangerous passage. A nasty slip occurred and three men were held only by a rope reeled over the head of one ice ax. The party proceeded with the utmost caution after this incident, it soon becoming evident that we were racing against darkness.

When we regained the great snow field, we were again racing against darkness.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Make Criminals of the Police?

SOME of the newspapers have been attacking the so-called "third-degree" methods of the Police Department. They would take away from the police the most effective means of securing necessary evidence. Would it not be more fitting for these papers to advocate some measure for the protection of the crime-ridden public than to be inviting sympathy and more protection for the criminal? The law-abiding people of St. Louis have been reading with concern the daily reports of crime committed in the city, and wondering why so few of the criminals are apprehended and why those few that are apprehended cannot, except in rare instances, be convicted and punished. The second query suggests an answer to the first: Is it worth knowing that it is next to impossible to convict them? The knowledge of this encourages and induces crime—Maxima illecebra pecandi impunitas spes. Under the criminal code in Latin countries the accused is confronted with the evidence of his guilt, called upon to answer and explain. He is given an opportunity to clear himself if innocent or to contribute to his own conviction if guilty. He is brought before the jury, and this is as it should be. Under our law and court procedure it is different; the accused is gently warned against opening his mouth, lest he incriminate himself. Although he may have been taken red-handed in his crime, he is to be regarded as an innocent person until adjudged guilty. He is given the benefit of every doubt. Facts are excluded from the jury on fine law points, and so on until the good people of the city feel that the laws and the courts exist solely for the protection of the criminal. For heaven's sake, let the police go ahead and get the evidence. Treat "em rough," if need be, but get the evidence necessary to convict some of the robbers and cut-throats that infest the city. Above all, let the newspapers cease their silly efforts to organize a society for the prevention of cruelty to criminals.

That Slow Bonus.

I HOLD bonus claim card No. 2158. I served 15 months in France with the Thirty-fifth Engineers. I was born in St. Louis and have lived here nearly 30 years. About a month ago I received from the Bonus Commission an additional affidavit to fill out. To prove that I am a resident here, now what is the big idea in Jefferson City? The only thing I can see is to prolong the job for some of the boys up there. Please tell me what is wrong. NO CHECK.

Muffle the Church Bells.

I HEARTILY approve of the sentiments expressed by many of your readers in their anti-noise campaign. Being a victim of the 6 o'clock newsboy, I am a sympathizer. But I wonder why nothing is said of the church bells that ring forth so violently not only every Sunday morning, but every other morning as well? Why not eliminate them as well as the newsboys?

SOUTH SIDE.

A Night Worker's Plight.

A LETTER that appeared in your valuable paper recently, signed Cliff, dweller, impressed me very much, as I reside in a densely populated district of the city, and I have had two night positions recently. I realize how annoying the Sunday newsboys are, as well as the unnecessary soundings of automobile horns and the everlasting din of hucksters in an endless parade. Does not many people have to work at night and are required to have the necessary amount of sleep in daylight to be in condition to perform their duties? I do not feel that I am unreasonable in this matter, and I would like to impress the ones who do these noisy acts what it really means to one that needs sleep after a night's work. Let others join Mr. Cliffdeweller for a request from our Board of Aldermen to prevent this noisy situation as much as possible, especially for the sake of us night workers.

JAMES H. LAVENDER.

Will Sell His Bonus.

CAN'T something be done so an ex-soldier can get on his feet only by getting his bonus, as I am working and just making enough to feed my family, and I am in the hole, too? My number is 2704. I am getting gray-haired waiting for it; will sell mine to anyone for 10 per cent less.

DOWN, BUT NOT OUT.

A Misapprehension. I HAVE noticed the scholarships awarded to the high school students, and it seems that those with Spanish names get the scholarships. Four of my boys will graduate next year from the high schools, all born in St. Louis, all reciting 150 in everything except the foreign languages. During the war they were discouraged in studying foreign languages, and encouraged in study of chemistry. Their cards show chemistry 100, but they won't recite the scholarship unless the rules are changed. MOTHER.

FRUITS OF FOLLY.

The folly of prohibition fanaticism adopted as a national policy and the baneful injustice and hypocrisy of the policy have been thoroughly exposed in the Shipping Board situation. It is a tragic farce, involving the honor and judgment and sincerity of the American people and touching a fundamental American principle, but when the criticism, irony and humor it evokes are exhausted there remains a serious condition which must be dealt with wisely.

The fate of the American merchant marine is at stake so far as swift passenger and cargo vessels are concerned and it is agreed that vessels of this character are imperatively necessary, not only for the full usefulness of the merchant marine, but for use in the event of war. Under the naval limitations treaty or in any event we will be hopelessly outclassed by Great Britain and Japan if we do not have in our merchant marine large, swift passenger and cargo vessels.

The proposal of Representative Edmonds of Pennsylvania to fine all ships of any nation, regardless of treaties or rights, which have liquor aboard in American ports, and as a final punishment bar them from American ports, embodies a greater folly. It would involve us in conflict with every nation with ships on the ocean and ultimately would act as an embargo against foreign vessels. The result would probably be the building up of great prosperous ports in Canada and Mexico and the killing of American ports. Americans would sail from Canadian ports and goods States by rail.

Barring American ships which carry and sell liquor from the benefits of the ship subsidies would merely whip the devil around the stump. Unless the subsidies were large enough to justify operating passenger ships, in which event the tax burdens would be vastly increased, the effect of the legal bar to subsidizing would be as deadly as the prohibition of liquor on American ships would be under present circumstances.

We might as well face the music. We cannot enforce our prohibition folly on the high seas, nor can we control human conduct or the laws of competition beyond our immediate jurisdiction. We cannot enforce prohibition even in our own territory.

American ships are in competition with the ships of all nations and they must conform to the laws of competition; they must meet competition at every point; as Chairman Lasker said truthfully in his wretched attempt at letter writing, the sale of liquor is necessary to the profitable operation of American passenger ships. Otherwise no one will travel on them. We are confronted by a condition, not a theory, and must meet the condition.

Obviously we cannot afford to keep empty ships going with subsidies, so we must find a way to keep them from American ships. If we will not abandon Federal prohibition we must exempt American ships from its operation. If the Attorney-General does not find that American ships are not subject to the prohibition laws, Congress, which can do what it pleases under the prohibition amendment, should exempt them.

Of course, this action would be unjust; it would be immoral and hypocritical. It would brand the United States Government as a monumental hypocrite; it would be rotten, but we are in a rotten mess. These are the fruits of fanaticism and folly embodied in Federal prohibition.

Prohibition is wrong in principle and can never be right in practice. We abandoned American principles when we put it into the Constitution and adopted the Volstead act to enforce it. Why dicker over the principles of justice and honesty in our practice? We have created the bootlegger; let us profit by it. Since the building up and support of the American merchant marine depends upon bootlegging, let us legalize governmental bootlegging. That would be better than violation of its own laws by the Government.

DOWN WITH THE MERCURY!

Men will meekly suffer injustice for a certain length of time; we are docile creatures, and rebel only in take fire with revolt, and that point is approximately 95 degrees Fahrenheit. In short, this weather is intolerable. Mark Twain noticed that everybody criticizes the weather but nobody ever did anything about it. Something must be done. Let us not mince words. Upon no ground, whether moral, geographical, political or ethnic, can the heat of the last week be justified. It withers the spirit, promotes domestic discord, vitiates the fair name of our city and impedes the stimulating the use of profanity. It awakens us by night and stupefies us by day. One would as well live in the East. Even Chicago is hardly worse.

Shall we, as a sovereign, if thirty people, cravenly submit to a temperature which threatens our lives, restricts our liberties and puts the kibosh on the pursuit of happiness? We'll say we shan't. Is it conceivable that our virtuous Weather Bureau has gone to the aid of the weather?

THE CONSUMER CARRIES IT.

over to the ice cream barons and the palm leaf mangle? Did our forecaster treacherously engage to prolong the heat which the Yankees naturally brought from New York? The American eagle shakes a drop of perspiration from his noble beak and screams weakly. Mr. Hayes has had his warning. Let him look to it.

ARGUMENT BY ASSAULT.

Senator McCumber, chief sponsor of the Senate tariff bill, instead of answering any of the specific attacks on the inequities of his bill, resorts to unsubstantiated vilification of those who, in the pursuit of defending the public interest, have made the attacks.

"The newspapers, especially those in New York and Boston," he charges, "are afraid to tell the truth. Why do they print articles and editorials to deceive the American people? Because their life blood depends upon the revenue from their big advertisers and their big advertisers depend for their prosperity upon the cheapness with which they can buy things abroad and upon the high prices they can get in the American market from the American consumer. This campaign of misrepresentation against the tariff is concentrated in the big cities, where the importers' advertisements dominate the newspapers."

The Senator then parades a peddler's assortment of nicknacks to show how the American people are being robbed by the importers who bribe even the "so-called Republican newspapers" through the sale of advertising space. Here is a cuckoo clock made in Germany for 94 cents and sold in New York for $22. Here is a string of pearls made in France for $12.25 and sold in America for $150. Here are carving sets and curling irons, hair clippers and briar pipes. "And the men who handle these," shouts the Senator, "are the men who are fighting this tariff bill. They don't want to give up robbing and taking the very life blood of this country."

Is the life blood of this country dependent on cuckoo clocks, briar pipes, carving sets and curling irons, or is it dependent on food, shelter and clothing? Food tariffs in the bill are prohibitively high, but when he is dependent on foreign markets to absorb his surplus and determine his prices the benefit to the farmer of sweeping import duties is nil. The cost of protection on what he sells is higher prices on what he buys.

On the materials of shelter Senator McCumber's bill has no consideration for the people. The building material interests are given the means of boosting building costs and rents. The McCumber surrender to the Cement Trust, which would have enabled that monopoly to levy an added tribute on road building, was too raw for acceptance even by the Senate. The intended duties on clothing materials are such, according to the experts of the Senate minority, as to make it possible for the big interests controlling these industries to take from the "life blood" of the American people $274,000,000 on silk, $219,000,000 on woolen goods and $750,000,000 on cotton goods.

Instead of answering these charges and discussing McCumber's bribery and "poisonous propaganda" at the newspapers attacking the concerted efforts of the Committee majority to increase the cost of living and thereby reduce the wages and income of the American people. Has the Senator no stronger case for his critics?

While Mr. Nations arrests bellhops at the Planters Hotel for serving liquor, Government bartenders serve liquor to passengers on Government-owned ships.

THE WEEKS GASTRITIS.

Secretary Weeks frankly let it be known to the graduates of Western Reserve University that of our national Public opinion of the legislative branch has been at lower ebb than it is today. In the matter of popular elections "we have run riot." The "blot" movement has ended party responsibility in government. The direct primary has so palpably lessened the quality of men willing to serve in public affairs that prompt action should be taken to greatly modify or entirely repeal it. The Government, he says, is completely social democratic.

A fair question, we believe, after this lay of lameness is he taking the elections in Indiana, Pennsylvania and Iowa that hard? Is a year of official responsibility in Washington so much worse than eight years of gay, synopsized opposition? Has the specter of Secretary's courage? The Secretary might at least show some enthusiasm for what he does want. If it is the secret caucus, the boss-ruled convention, legislative election of Senators and plenty of slush for every sympathetic spirit, why not out with it? Expression, as well as confession, is good for the soul. There are many lovers of the good old days, but nobody loves a grouch or its chronic spokesman.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE.

Judging by the following from the New Madrid (Mo.) Record, the enthusiasm for prohibition is not lasting down there, either: The Federal and State laws, but it is proper to say that the methods of obtaining evidence for the conviction of the violators of the prohibition laws, by search of the private homes of the people, is carried on in this city this and last week, is resented by many good citizens as unnecessary. It is all right to search a man's home when there is good reason to believe that he is guilty, but to do so on mere suspicion is a different thing. Several hundred years ago governments used the rack to extort evidence of guilt, but that way of securing convictions is not tolerated now. There are "search warrants" are issued to invade the homes of Americans. As it is now, a man may be humiliated by the mere suggestion of a personal enemy.

HYPOCRISY ENLIGHTENING THE WORLD.

JUST A MINUTE.

Written for the POST-DISPATCH
 By Clark McDanns

GUGLIELMO FERRERO, the historian, has concluded that he does not think as much of our American world of quantity as he once did. He is a man of quality, as opposed to Europe's world of quantity. He went in for a time enamored of Germany, which it even before Germany came to grief. Now he asks this pertinent question, particularly pertinent when there are scarcely ships enough to get us across the Atlantic, so great is the fever of travel to Europe:

Why, when Europeans eager for gold turn their backs on the Old World, cursing it, do the Americans, plentifully possessed of gold, on the contrary turn toward that Old World in order to seek there something which is lacking amid their own prodigious wealth? What does this perpetual hurrying back and forth across the Atlantic mean? This disquiet with which the two continents seek one another, when the people of one world can by no means go over entirely to the other, and when neither world can entirely assimilate the other?

We asked Mr. Antwine, who made the following statement: "We came over here from Europe to get rich, which is a natural aspiration among human beings. When we got rich we found out that that was not what we wanted. We began to turn back to Europe. There is no sympathy as between material and spiritual. Our stomachs have been in America, but our souls have always been in Europe. I have an indisputable proof of this. Let us say we go back to Athens. What is it we want? Not at all. We want to see the Acropolis, which the Greeks erected themselves spiritually. Thus, Greece is a more interesting place to us than Rome, because the Greeks were capable of more spiritual expression. It is a great thing for a man from Gary, Ind., to go back and see if anything remains of the celebrated sculptural frieze of Phidias. Don't laugh at it."

WS: In a recent issue your column contained a paragraph about a little town in Western Kansas by the name of Ingalls. I sent a copy to a relative who lives there; the following is the come-back:

"I want to take a rap or two at that naughty editor. I don't know whether he was poking fun at John J. or the town or both. But as for name-sakes, if the original George Washington could know how many little and big black name-sakes he has had in the last hundred years he would feel like turning in his grave and kicking down the Washington Monument. Yes, up highest are apt to fall hardest. I think that towns ought not to be pointed at with scorn because they are small. He was not quite fair, for he should have mentioned the fact that there are two elevators and a high school where the children of the town and average education as the average in St. Louis, if not better. Now I want to throw it suddenly some thousands of good many thousands of people in St. Louis could be housed and clothed, and fed, as well as educated, as the people of Ingalls are there would be great rejoicing among the editors and burden would be lifted. Good bye, Mr. Editor, with my compliments, come again."

We dare say the comparison is quite true, but if fame is to be measured by human comfort we have no doubt in the world that the somebody done by us were only afraid for him and we are immensely comforted to find our fears were probably groundless.

Charleston (Mo.) Index: An editor's duty is to speak of the town as the best place beneath the blue arch of heaven. Speak of a deceased citizen as a "fallen oak." Then he died from drinking moonshine. Call a man a prominent citizen when you know he is the best kept, bright-eyed youth on the road to fame. A big-footed newly married woman as a beautiful and accomplished bride. Call a man who has a few dimes of calico a prosperous and experienced light when you know him to be an ordinary pettifogger and call an ordinary doctor a skilled and eminent surgeon when he does not possess skill enough to lance a boil.

Some times it looks as if they tax everything except their judgment.—Fort Smith Southwest American.

RUSSIA'S FATE AFTER LENIN.

From the Montgomery Advertiser.
MAXIMILIAN HARDEN, the most famous writer in Germany—the one German who can catch the ear of America—his Sunday letter, speculated upon the future of Russia since Lenin, reported ill, die, and thus loosen the grip of the most intelligent man bolshevism has produced. Lenin's relief at his death, says Harden, "was a pause, for after him is chaos, unless the wisest powers prevent it by careful management of Russian minds and customs. There is separate, dualistic government, civil war, a catastrophe of more than one peasant people, 23,000,000 are dying and 40,000,000 are returning to cannibalism. However, so far his death is kept secret bolshevism remains in him. It is not easy to picture a Russia in chaos on account of the loss of Lenin. Lenin suffered since he and Trotsky came into power for Lenin to pass. His passing would be the removal of the greatest individual cause of the case. There might be a temporary revolutionary revolution, with Trotsky as the chief of attraction. But these outbreaks might be the death throes of a monster."

HEAVY TAX FOR USING SUGAR.

From the New York Herald.
THE American people are asked by the makers of the Senate Finance Committee to pay a tariff bill of more than $169,000,000 on the sugar they consume. That is what the committee says. It is a hundred percent Cuban sugar will work out when applied to the country's normal consumption of approximately 10,000,000,000 pounds a year. But the Americans will be interested to know that the extremists on the committee really wanted more than that to the sugar consumed in the country. They thought "they might as well as even $200,000,000 of extra sugar cost the American consumer's back. The original Committee proposal was a duty of 2 cents a pound on Cuban sugar, which not only is the bulk of the sugar consumed by this country, but also the sugar which is the basis of the course of the Senate's voting on the tariff. The American people will get that 2-cent duty in all if the hard boiled tariff makers of their way about it. They want to put the American sugar consumers up to the task of year by forcing through an amazing increase of the floor of the Senate, with the aid of some of the Cumber's Democratic shock troops."

SOPHIE BRANDT AS OPERA PRIMA.

Her Engagement included Sunday Thiede to Bo.

The Municipal Theatre announced today accepted the resignation of Sophie Brandt, prima donna, effect after the conclusion of "Sweetheart's" night.

She will be succeeded by Tuesday night as kete in "Sari." She arrived morning, and attended during the day at Jefferson. She appeared yesterday, she has been slender; she has been hair, a merry smile and style of dress. She is six inches tall.

Miss Thiede was born in Philadelphia, which is still her home. She was graduated from the Philadelphia Conservatory of Music and has given recitals in the Philadelphia and the Philadelphia orchestra. She has been a part in "Blossom" and "The Girl in the Red Velvet Gown."

According to Business David E. Russell, Miss Brandt's resignation was sent her resignation. She was persuaded to remain until a successor could be found. She is said to have been heat and the strenuous rehearsals and nightly performances. She was much for her stay that she had been in St. Louis, and she was in study and granding abroad.

Speaking Parts From "The Highwayman." The Municipal Theatre has been widely expressed as to the voice, physique and youth of Sophie Brandt, who has been considered a requisite for the roles in light opera. In fact that most of her work was in mezzo-soprano. Her management was asked who was the best soprano in error it made in 1920 in Irene Pavlova, also a mezzo-soprano.

It was admitted, on hand, that Miss Brandt was a speaking part, displaying voice, experience and education, with a humor that might have made her a character role.

Public satisfaction in the Municipal Theatre was pronounced with her part of Sylvia in the current production, "The Highwayman." Victor Herbert's "The Highwayman" was produced by Charles McDonald, which traditionally slighted the Municipal Theatre. At last night's performance, Miss Brandt was almost as talked with as her husband with the Municipal Theatre. Several of the Municipal Theatre's troupe.

ridge and traced out our course coming up. It did not appear that we would be able to repeat the cutting of the steps. In this grim, slow process we were observed at 8 p. m. by Strutt, who was below in Camp 2. Nor were our difficulties ended after passing the snow ridge.

One of the disagreeable facts which differentiates a Himalayan expedition from lower mountains is that an exhausted man does not recover his strength quickly as he goes down. Morhead, although climbing with great pluck and tremendous effort in breathing, had now arrived at the end of his tether. At best he could proceed only a few steps at a time. Fortunately, there was easy going down toward North Col as we watched the diminishing light.

Norton supported Morhead by his shoulders and I found the easiest way down. Somervell acting as rear guard. Sinister gray clouds and flickering lightning after sunset over one of the most amazing mountain views seemed malicious. What sort of wind would be found under the Col after dark, when our difficulties were due to recommence. Good luck or good providence at the moment when we reached the crevasses in the dim starlight, calmed the air so that Somervell was able to produce a lantern and a light a candle with a match after a dozen trials. We groped about to find a way, but happily no one fell through the surface before we reached the edge of a small cliff.

15-Foot Jump Necessary.

Here it was necessary to jump down about 15 feet into the snow and it was a sufficiently alarming prospect at that hour, but the leap was safely accomplished. One of our fixed ropes, if it could be found, would have taken us down to the terrace, where there could be seen five tents neatly pitched in a row and awaiting our arrival. But the rope was buried under the snow and the last candle had burned out. We groped along, sometimes on the edge of the precipice and then began to go down at a steep angle doubting whether that was the way. Suddenly someone picked up the rope from under the snow. We knew then that the tents could be reached.

Ten minutes later in the camp the cry was raised that the most essential thing of all was missing. The porters who had gone down yesterday to camp there had apparently taken with them the cooking pots, so the drink we had yearned for all day was denied us at this late hour. It was now 11:30 p. m. All were only too ready for bed, but one suggested itself to the imagination of Norton. He opened a can of jam and a can of frozen milk, mixing them in mugs of snow. I followed his example with the result that what he thought was delicious, to me seemed nauseating, but at least swallowable.

After hours or more of wandering in the dark with feet always in contact with the snow were any one's toes frost-bitten? It was little short of a miracle, but we had escaped, for the same kind fate that calmed the air seemingly kept our feet warm.

With a little rubbing we turned into our sleeping sacks to sleep the sleep of tired men.

The most remarkable fact in our experience was that three of us at a height of nearly 27,000 feet felt little or no more physical discomfort than here at the base camp. It remains a fact that must be reckoned with in any climbing party at great heights that at any moment it may happen that anyone will feel as Morhead felt, and it will require more than two hours' rest or the descent of a few thousand feet to restore his lost strength. The margin of safety is small. We were not unscathed, for three of us are out of action from frost bite. Certainly we were not fortunate as fortune often goes, but, judging by the conditions usually encountered on Everest, we were not wholly unlucky.

HUMANE SOCIETY TO BE OUSTED DOG POUND KEPT

MAYOR'S STATEMENT FOLLOWS INJUNCTION

City Officials Temporarily Enjoined From Selling Belonging to George Gerhart to University

The Humane Society will be ed from control of the pound and the impounding of dogs, as a result of its opposition to the city of St. Louis ordinance, Mayor Kluge stated yesterday afternoon. This statement followed the filing of a temporary restraining injunction by Circuit Judge Hall, enjoining officials from selling an impounded dog belonging to George J. Gerhart, 6015 Cabanne avenue, to the University Medical School. The Mayor, Health Commissioner Starkloff and City Marshal are named defendants in the suit which is set for hearing next day. Douglas W. Robert, attorney for the Humane Society, represented the society.

The Mayor said he would tribute the filing of this injunction to the Humane Society, that the organization has a Commissioner Starkloff in effect carry out the ordinance, and constituted sufficient grounds removing the society from the pound and the impounding of dogs.

Put in Charge 18 Months. Instructions will be forwarded to the deputies of City Marshal to place persons other than the Humane Society officials in charge of the dog pound, the Mayor said. The ordinance provided for the impounding of dogs for 18 months under an agreement with the Mayor. The ordinance provided for the impounding of dogs for 18 months under an agreement with the Mayor. "At the inception of this legislation," the Mayor said, "I was to be opposed to turning the pound over to the schools, but an ordinance had been introduced in the Board of Health by the medical profession convinced me, as well as the Board of Health, that the pound should be turned over to the schools."

HUMANE SOCIETY TO BE OUSTED AS DOG POUND KEEPER

Kid to Take Action Because of Opposition to Sale of Animals to Medical Schools.

MAYOR'S STATEMENT
FOLLOWS INJUNCTION

City Officials Temporarily
Enjoined From Selling Dog Belonging to George J.
Gerhart to University.

The Humane Society will be ousted from control of the city dog pound, as a result of its opposition to the sale by the city of dogs to medical schools under the so-called vivisection ordinance, Mayor Kiel declared yesterday afternoon.

This statement followed the granting of a temporary restraining order by Circuit Judge Hall, enjoining city officials from selling an impounded dog belonging to George J. Gerhart, 6015 Cabanne avenue, to the Washington University Medical School.

The Mayor, Health Commissioner
Starkloff and City Marshal Schuler
are named defendants in the case, which is set for hearing next Thursday. Douglas W. Robert, attorney for the Humane Society, represents Gerhart.

The Mayor said he would not attribute the filing of this injunction suit to the Humane Society, but that the organization has opposed Commissioner Starkloff in efforts to carry out the ordinance, and this constituted sufficient grounds for removing the society from direction of the impounding work.

Put in Charge 16 Months Ago.
Instructions will be forwarded today to the deputies of City Marshal Schuler to place persons other than Humane Society officials in charge of the dog pound, the Mayor said.

Schuler is absent from the city. The dog pound is under the supervision of the City Marshal, but the Humane Society was placed in charge 16 months ago under an arrangement sanctioned by the Mayor.

The ordinance passed by the Humane Society provides for the sale of impounded dogs to medical schools for scientific purposes at 75 cents each. Three days are allowed for redemption of the dogs by the owners.

"At the inception of vivisection legislation," the Mayor said, "for sentimental reasons I was inclined to be opposed to turning the dogs at the pound over to the medical schools, but an ordinance having been introduced in the Board of Aldermen the medical profession of St.
Louis convinced me, as well as the Board of Aldermen, that this disposition of these animals was necessary in the cause of humanity.

"Much Opposition."
The Board of Aldermen, the representatives of the people, virtually passed this ordinance unanimously and it has become a law.

"It is the purpose of this administration, so far as I am concerned, to see the laws enforced. There has been much opposition on the part of those in charge of the dog pound to the carrying out of the provisions of this ordinance, and I believe that the proper course for me to pursue is to remove those in charge and place someone else in charge who is more in sympathy with carrying out the law as passed by the Board of Aldermen."

George E. Dieckman, superintendent and secretary of the Humane Society, said that the society impounded 8600 dogs last year and that 1500 of this number were redeemed by their owners. Dogs not redeemed or sold are killed. When dogs are redeemed the license fee and penalty for any dog not muzzled go to the city and the Humane Society receives 75 cents for impounding the dog. The Society also derives money from the sale of dogs to persons desiring them as pets.

About 50 dogs now are being impounded daily.

Recently Attorney Robert informed the City Counselor that the Humane Society would not oppose the use of dogs by medical schools if the ordinance was amended to provide that dogs used in experimentation should not be permitted to recover from the anesthetic, but, when the experiment was completed,

should be killed by an increased application of the anesthetic.

The Story of Mankind

by PROF. HENDRIK VAN LOON

Publication of this absorbingly interesting story of the human race was begun Monday, May 29, in the Post-Dispatch. Back numbers can be had on application at the Post-Dispatch business office.

THE MEDIEVAL WORLD. What the People of the Middle Ages Thought of the World in Which They Lived.

THE MEDIEVAL WORLD. What the People of the Middle Ages Thought of the World in Which They Lived. They were apt to make history too practical. For example, when I talk of the point-of-view of medieval man I do not mean that on the 11th of December of the year 476, suddenly all the people of Europe said, "All now the Roman empire has come to an end and we are living in the Middle Ages. How interesting!" You could have found men at the English court of Charlemagne who were Romans in their habits, in their manners, in their outlook upon life. On the other hand, when you grow up you will discover that some of the people in this world have never passed beyond the stage of the cave-man. All times and all ages overlap, and the ideas of succeeding generations play tag with each other. But it is possible to study the minds of a good many true representatives of the Middle Ages and get an idea of the average man's attitude toward life and the many difficult problems of living.

First of all, remember that the people of the Middle Ages never thought of themselves as free-born citizens, who could come and go as they pleased, and who were free to do as they pleased. They were bound to their lords, and their lords were bound to their lords. On the contrary, they all considered themselves part of the general scheme of things, which included emperors and kings, popes and heretics, heroes and swashbucklers, rich men, poor men, beggar men and thieves. They accepted this divine ordinance and asked no questions. In this, of course, they differed radically from modern people, who accept nothing and who are forever trying to improve their own financial and political situation.

To the man and woman of the thirteenth century, the world hereafter—a hereafter of lights and a hell of brimstones and suffering—meant something more than a vague theological phrase. It was an actual fact, and the medieval burghers and knights spent the greater part of their time preparing for it. We modern people regard a noble death after a well-spent life with the quietude of the ancient Greeks and Romans. After three score years of work and effort we go to sleep with the feeling that all will be well.

But during the Middle Ages, the King of Terrors with his grinning skull and his rattling bones was man's steady companion. He woke him up with terrible terrors on his scraggy fiddle—he sat down with them at dinner—he smiled at them from behind trees and shrubs when they took a girl out for a walk. If you had heard nothing but half-raising yarns about cemeteries and fearful diseases when you were very young, instead of listening to the fairy stories of Andersen and Grimm, you too would have lived all your days in a dread of the final hour and the gruesome day of Judgment. That is exactly what happened to the children of the Middle Ages. They moved in a world of devils and devils and only a few occasional angels. Sometimes their fear of the future filled their souls with humility and piety, but often it influenced them in other ways and made them cruel and sentimental. They would first of all murder all the women and children of a captured city, and then they would devote the rest of the city to their own use, and then they would with their hands gory with the blood of innocent victims they would pray that a merciful heaven forgive them their sins. Yes, they would do more than pray, they would weep bitter tears and would confess themselves the most wicked of sinners. But the next day they would once more butcher a ship of Barren enemies without a spark of mercy in their hearts.

Of course, the Crusaders were knights and obeyed a somewhat different code of manners from the common men, but in such respects the common man was just the same as his master. He, too, resembled a shy horse, easily frightened by a shadow or a silly piece of paper, capable of heroism and faithful service but liable to run away and do terrible damage when his feverish imagination saw a ghost.

In judging these good people, however, it is wise to remember the terrible standards under which they lived. They were really barbarians who posed as civilized people. Charlemagne and Otto the Great were called "Roman Emperors," but they had as little resemblance to a real Roman Emperor (say Augustus or Marcus Aurelius) as King Wamba, Wamba of the upper Congo basin, the highly educated ruler of Sweden or Denmark. They were savages who lived amidst glorious ruins, but who did not share the benefits of the civilization which their fathers and grandfathers had destroyed. They knew nothing. They were ignorant of almost every fact which a boy of 13 knows today. They were obliged to go to a single book for all their information. That was the Bible. But those parts of the Bible which had influenced the history of the human race for the better are those chapters of the New Testament which teach us the great moral lessons of love, charity and forgiveness. As a handbook of astronomy, zoology, botany, geometry and all the other sciences of the Middle Ages is not entirely reliable. In the twelfth century, a second book was added to the medieval library, the great encyclopedia of useful knowledge compiled by Aristotle, the Greek philosopher of the fourth century before Christ. Why the Christian church should have been willing to accord such high honors to the teacher of the venerable Greek philosopher of the fourth century before Christ, we do not know. Great, whereas they condemned all other Greek philosophers on account of their heathenish doctrines. I really do not know. But next to the Bible, Aristotle was recognized as the only reliable teacher whose works could be safely placed into the hands of true Christians.

His works had reached Europe in a somewhat roundabout way. They had gone from Greece to Alexandria. They had then been translated from the Greek into the Arabic language by the Mohammedans who conquered Egypt in the seventh century. They had followed the Moslem armies into Spain and the philosophy of the great Stagira (Aristotle) was a native of Stagira in Macedonia) was taught in the Moslem universities of Cordova. The Arabic text was then translated into Latin by the Christian students who had crossed the Pyrenees to get a liberal education, and this much-traveled version of the famous books was at last taught at the different schools of Northwestern Europe. It was not very clear, but that made it all the more interesting.

With the help of the Bible and Aristotle, the most brilliant men of the Middle Ages now set to work to explain all things between heaven and earth in their relation to the expressed will of God. These brilliant men, the so-called Scholastics or Schoolmen, were really very intelligent, but they had obtained their education exclusively from books, and never from actual observation. If they wanted to lecture on the sturgeon or on caterpillars, they read the Old and New Testaments and Aristotle, and told their students everything these good books had to say upon the subject of caterpillars and sturgeons. They did not go out to the nearest river to catch a sturgeon, and they did not go to the nearest field to catch a few caterpillars and look at these animals and study them in their native haunts. Even such famous scholars as Albertus Magnus and Thomas Aquinas did not inquire whether the sturgeons in the land of Palestine might not have been different from the sturgeons and the caterpillars of Western Europe.

When occasionally an exceptionally curious person like Roger Bacon appeared in the council of the learned and began to experiment with magnifying glasses and funny little telescopes and actually dragged the sturgeon and the caterpillar to the lecturing room and proved that they were different from the creatures described by the Old Testament and by Aristotle, the schoolmen shook their dignified heads. Bacon was going too far. When he dared to suggest that an hour of actual observation was worth more than 10 years with Aristotle and that the works of that famous Greek might as well have remained untranslated for all the good they had ever done, the scholars went to the police and said, "This man is a danger to the safety of the State. He wants us to study Greek, that we may read Aristotle in the original. Why should he not be contented with our Latin-Arabic translation which has stood for centuries? Why is he so curious about the insides of fishes and the insides of insects? He is probably a wicked magician trying to upset the established order of things by his Black Magic." And so they did their best to cause the frightened guardians of the peace to forbid Bacon to write a single word for more than 10 years. When he resumed his studies he had learned a lesson. He wrote his books in a queer cipher which made it impossible for his contemporaries to read them, a trick which became common as the church became more desperate in its attempts to prevent people from asking questions which would lead to doubts and infidelity.

This, however, was not done out of any wicked desire to keep people ignorant. The feeling which prompted the heretic hunters of that day was really a very kindly one. They firmly believed—may they know—that this life was but the preparation for our real existence in the next world. They felt convinced that too much knowledge made people uncomfortable, filled their minds with dangerous opinions and led to doubt and hence to "perdition." A medieval schoolman who saw one of his pupils stray away from the safe path of the Bible and Aristotle, that he might study things for himself, felt as uncomfortable as a loving mother who sees her young child approach a hot stove. She knows that he will burn his little fingers if he is allowed to touch it and she tries to keep him back. If necessary she will use force. But she really loves the child and it is the same with the schoolman. He knows that the world which was filled with suffering and wickedness and injustice. They pulled down the blinds that the rays of the sun might not distract their attention from that chapter in the Apocalypse which told them of that heavenly light which was to illumine the happiness in all eternity. They tried to close their eyes to most of the joys of the world in which they lived that they might enjoy those which awaited them in the near future. They accepted life as a necessary evil and welcomed death as the beginning of a glorious day.

The Greeks and the Romans had never bothered about the future, but had tried to establish their Paradise right here upon this earth. They had succeeded in making life extremely pleasant for those of their fellow men who did not happen to be slaves. Then came the other extreme of the Middle Ages, when man built himself a Paradise beyond the highest clouds and turned this world into a vale of tears for high and low, for rich and poor, for the intelligent and the dumb. It was time for the pendulum to swing back in the other direction. I shall tell you in my next chapter.

A sect was a sect and his position would never change. But the good Lord of the MIDDLE ages who allowed the sect to remain a slave all his life had bestowed an immortal soul upon this humble creature and real upon this humble creature and real upon this humble creature. These brave men, the so-called Scholastics or Schoolmen, were really very intelligent, but they had obtained their education exclusively from books, and never from actual observation. These brave men, the so-called Scholastics or Schoolmen, were really very intelligent, but they had obtained their education exclusively from books, and never from actual observation. If they wanted to lecture on the sturgeon or on caterpillars, they read the Old and New Testaments and Aristotle, and told their students everything these good books had to say upon the subject of caterpillars and sturgeons. They did not go out to the nearest river to catch a sturgeon, and they did not go to the nearest field to catch a few caterpillars and look at these animals and study them in their native haunts. Even such famous scholars as Albertus Magnus and Thomas Aquinas did not inquire whether the sturgeons in the land of Palestine might not have been different from the sturgeons and the caterpillars of Western Europe.

When occasionally an exceptionally curious person like Roger Bacon appeared in the council of the learned and began to experiment with magnifying glasses and funny little telescopes and actually dragged the sturgeon and the caterpillar to the lecturing room and proved that they were different from the creatures described by the Old Testament and by Aristotle, the schoolmen shook their dignified heads. Bacon was going too far. When he dared to suggest that an hour of actual observation was worth more than 10 years with Aristotle and that the works of that famous Greek might as well have remained untranslated for all the good they had ever done, the scholars went to the police and said, "This man is a danger to the safety of the State. He wants us to study Greek, that we may read Aristotle in the original. Why should he not be contented with our Latin-Arabic translation which has stood for centuries? Why is he so curious about the insides of fishes and the insides of insects? He is probably a wicked magician trying to upset the established order of things by his Black Magic." And so they did their best to cause the frightened guardians of the peace to forbid Bacon to write a single word for more than 10 years. When he resumed his studies he had learned a lesson. He wrote his books in a queer cipher which made it impossible for his contemporaries to read them, a trick which became common as the church became more desperate in its attempts to prevent people from asking questions which would lead to doubts and infidelity.

This, however, was not done out of any wicked desire to keep people ignorant. The feeling which prompted the heretic hunters of that day was really a very kindly one. They firmly believed—may they know—that this life was but the preparation for our real existence in the next world. They felt convinced that too much knowledge made people uncomfortable, filled their minds with dangerous opinions and led to doubt and hence to "perdition." A medieval schoolman who saw one of his pupils stray away from the safe path of the Bible and Aristotle, that he might study things for himself, felt as uncomfortable as a loving mother who sees her young child approach a hot stove. She knows that he will burn his little fingers if he is allowed to touch it and she tries to keep him back. If necessary she will use force. But she really loves the child and it is the same with the schoolman. He knows that the world which was filled with suffering and wickedness and injustice. They pulled down the blinds that the rays of the sun might not distract their attention from that chapter in the Apocalypse which told them of that heavenly light which was to illumine the happiness in all eternity. They tried to close their eyes to most of the joys of the world in which they lived that they might enjoy those which awaited them in the near future. They accepted life as a necessary evil and welcomed death as the beginning of a glorious day.

The Greeks and the Romans had never bothered about the future, but had tried to establish their Paradise right here upon this earth. They had succeeded in making life extremely pleasant for those of their fellow men who did not happen to be slaves. Then came the other extreme of the Middle Ages, when man built himself a Paradise beyond the highest clouds and turned this world into a vale of tears for high and low, for rich and poor, for the intelligent and the dumb. It was time for the pendulum to swing back in the other direction. I shall tell you in my next chapter.

A sect was a sect and his position would never change. But the good Lord of the MIDDLE ages who allowed the sect to remain a slave all his life had bestowed an immortal soul upon this humble creature and real upon this humble creature and real upon this humble creature. These brave men, the so-called Scholastics or Schoolmen, were really very intelligent, but they had obtained their education exclusively from books, and never from actual observation. If they wanted to lecture on the sturgeon or on caterpillars, they read the Old and New Testaments and Aristotle, and told their students everything these good books had to say upon the subject of caterpillars and sturgeons. They did not go out to the nearest river to catch a sturgeon, and they did not go to the nearest field to catch a few caterpillars and look at these animals and study them in their native haunts. Even such famous scholars as Albertus Magnus and Thomas Aquinas did not inquire whether the sturgeons in the land of Palestine might not have been different from the sturgeons and the caterpillars of Western Europe.

position of great importance during the late Middle Ages. The Italian peninsula had been settled by Rome at a very early date. There had been more roads and more towns and more schools than anywhere else in Europe. The barbarians had burned as lustily in Italy as elsewhere, but there had been so much to destroy that more had been able to survive. In the second place, the Pope lived in Italy and as the head of a vast political machine, which owned land and serfs and buildings and forests and rivers and conducted courts of law, he was in constant receipt of a great deal of money. The Papal authorities had to be paid in gold and silver as did the merchants and ship-owners of Venice and Genoa. The cows and the eggs and the horses and all the other agricultural products of the north and the west must be changed into actual cash before the debt could be paid in the distant city of Rome. This made Italy the one country where there was a comparative abundance of gold and silver. Finally, during the Crusades, the Italian cities had become the point of embarkation for the Crusaders and had profited to an almost unbelievable extent. And after the Crusades had come to an end, these same Italian cities remained the distributing centers for those Oriental goods upon which the people of Europe had come to depend during the time they had spent in the Near East. Of these towns, few were as famous as Venice. Venice was a mud bank, public built upon a mud bank. Thither people from the mainland had fled during the invasion of the barbarians in the fourth century. They had engaged in the business of salt making. Salt had been very scarce during the Middle Ages, and the price had been high. For hundreds of years Venice had enjoyed a monopoly of this indispensable table commodity (I say indispensable because people, like sheep, fall ill unless they get a certain amount of salt in their food). The people had used this monopoly to increase the power of their city. At times they had even dared to defy the power of the Pope. The town had grown rich and had begun to build ships, which were used to carry passengers to the Holy Land, and when the passengers could not pay for their tickets, the Venetians who were for ever increasing their colonies in the Aegean Sea, in Asia Minor and in Egypt.

The One Trip in a Thousand—for This Summer

BY AN EASTERNER

MEN, women, children—all need a change in summer time from the year's routine of business, home and school. It is profitable in dollars and in health. Good business men and doctors all agree. Decide to go and go now. But have a complete change, for in the greatest change is greatest value.

I was so advised by a physician years ago, and the question naturally arose, "Where to?"

A Surprising Answer

A friend of mine suggested Southern California, which caused me great surprise.

I thought it a warm place to go in summer. But he convinced me otherwise and so I went.

I spent July, August and September there and slept under blankets ninety nights. I never knew a finer summer climate. Balmy days, ideal for any sport, and refreshing sleep were invariably the rule.

But more than that, I enjoyed the absolute diversion due to totally different environment and "atmosphere," that really renews people who are fatigued.

This same experience is near you, too—only a few hours away. For two weeks or two months—it's worth your while.

A World Within a Province

Southern California is a summer wonderland of opportunity for fun or rest.

Here are great seashore resorts with fine hotels or modest cottages.

Four thousand miles of paved automobile highways marked by 70,000 official guide-signs to direct you to myriad points of interest, including a one-hundred-and-one-mile drive called "Rim of the World" with stupendous views on either side.

The world's most famous ocean fishing grounds, where champion anglers come each year from every section of the globe. Also mountain trout streams.

Mountain climbing, with scenic grandeur that Switzerland would boast, or visit a peak by trolley. Ocean islands and mountain lakes like Italy's.

Great cities, old Spanish missions and primal wilderness within a stone's throw.

A desert (next door to rich orange groves) larger than all, save Sahara, with strange mirage effects. In fact, a thousand unusual attractions to absorb you in their interest. And all these delights and curiosities within a circle with a radius of a few hours. Travel as you will by motor, train or trolley.

Don't say you can't leave business. Take the family and go! You'll never regret it, for this is one trip in a thousand. Make it now!

Starts on the Train

The railroad trip itself is memorable—through the canyons, mountains and great plains. Every inch is teeming with our early history. This great vacation starts when you step on the train.

Go now. The thing to do is, go now—go this summer. Men, women, children—all need a change like this. Decide now. You can arrange it as you will.

Special low-rate, round trip fares now in effect—No more War Tax.

Ask any railroad ticket agent for further information, or mail coupon below. You'll say it's the best trip of your life.

HAIR OFTEN RUINED BY CARELESS WASHING

Soap should be used very carefully. If you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Malifield coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Malifield in a cup of glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply massage the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and shiny, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Malifield coconut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it's very cheap and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Malifield.

BOARD QUILTS EXCUSING ELECTION OFFICIALS

Length of Primary Ballot Causes Many to Seek Relief From Service.

Aroused by the applications of rapidly increasing numbers of election judges and clerks to be excused from service in the registration of voters June 22 and the primary election Aug. 1, the Board of Election Commissioners yesterday afternoon announced no more election officials would be excused. It also stated that any election officials who failed to report at the polls for duty would be prosecuted.

A member of the board said approximately 50 election officials were appearing daily, or sending persons supposed to have influence, in an effort to be excused from service. One of the chief reasons for the rush to evade service, it was said, is because the ballots in the primary election will carry the names of a record breaking number of candidates for nomination and the work of counting the vote will be more difficult than usual.

Registration Next Thursday.

Registration of voters will take place in each precinct next Thursday. Failure of an election official to appear at the polls registration day constitutes a misdemeanor punishable by a maximum fine of $500. Failure to appear on election day also is classed as a misdemeanor. Failure of the judges to bring the election books to the polls when they open carries a more serious penalty. An offender, upon conviction, may be sentenced to a jail term of three months to one year and fined from $200 to $1000.

Each of the 618 St. Louis precincts has six officials appointed by the Board of Election Commissioners, a total of 3708. The officials for each precinct are two Republican judges and two Democratic judges, one Republican clerk and one Democratic clerk. All election officials receive $5 a day. They were appointed in December and January last and will serve until Aug. 1, 1924.

The registration next Thursday will start at 8 a. m. and close at 9 p. m. June 23 and 24 the election clerks will canvass their precincts to verify the registration. Applications for registration as absentees and invalids may be filed with the Election Commissioners between June 23 and July 3.

Revision at City Hall.

Revision of the registration books will take place June 27, 28, 29 and 30 in the offices of the Election Commissioners at the city hall. Herebefore the polls have been opened for revision of the books. Voters who have been denied the right to register at the polling places on registration day may make application to the Election Commissioners for registration during the four-day revision period. Applications for appeal to the Circuit Court, if registration is denied by the board may be filed between July 1 and July 11 and will be heard in Circuit Court July 14 and 15. July 22 is the last day for the transfer at the city hall of registered voters who have changed their residence from one precinct to another since registration day.

The Election Commissioners will hold absentee and invalid registration at the city hall, July 24, 25 and 26.

Following the primary election Aug. 1, the official canvass of returns will take place Aug. 4.

Registration for the general election Nov. 7 will take place in each precinct Sept. 28 and the Election Commissioners will revise the registration books Oct. 3, 4, 5 and 6.

SEARCH FOR LEPROUS SUSPECT BEING MADE IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Health Department Officials Seek Switchman, Who Has Disease Suspected to Be Leprosy.

East St. Louis Health Department officials are looking for E. M. Wington, 46 years old, formerly a switchman on the Illinois Central Railroad, in East St. Louis, who is suffering with what is suspected to be leprosy.

Health Commissioner Lillie received a telephone message Wednesday from St. Louis that Wington had been examined by a physician at the Health Department. Dr. Lillie advised that Wington be taken to his home and he would handle the case. Wington was returned home, but he learned that Wington had left during the night. He has a wife and daughter. They informed Dr. Lillie that he had been suffering for about six months with red spots on his body.

DROWNED MAN'S BODY FOUND

The body of Ernest Copeland, 23 years old, a farmer, of Davisville, Mo., who was drowned Monday when the gasoline launch, in which he was riding, sank after a collision with the steamer St. Paul, opposite the foot of East Grand avenue, was found in the river near Barton street yesterday by a fisherman. This was about 70 blocks from the scene of the accident.

The body was identified by Frank Netzel of 5404 North King's highway, whose brother, John, 27, a machinist, was drowned with Copeland a few minutes after the two men in the boat had been talking with Frank, who was on the steamboat.

M. K. & T. TO BUILD NEW SHOPS
COSTING $3,000,000 IN TEXAS

By the Associated Press.
AUSTIN, Tex., April 11.—Approval was given today by the Texas Railroad Commission to the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway to discontinue its present shops at Denison, and to construct new shops and terminal facilities there to cost approximately $3,000,000. Plans for the new construction have already been prepared.

and actual work is to start immediately, according to H. C. Whitcomb, chief operating officer.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 14.—More persons were arrested for intoxication in New York during 1929 than in either of the two preceding years, the annual report of the magistrate's courts revealed today. There were 6976 offenders in 1929 compared with 6340 in 1928 and 5667 in 1927.

WEIRD MEMORIES RECALLED BY FINDING OF BELLED BUZZARD

Mysterious Tinkling, Ever Elusive, Came to Be Regarded as Akin to Supernatural Warnings in Ozarks After Civil War.

By the Associated Press.
WARSAW, Mo., June 14.—A buzzard with a small bell tied around its neck was found near here not long ago—and with the finding of the belled buzzard there is wafted back to old-timers near here and in the southwestern part of the State the freshened memories of a mystery half a century ago, one in which a bell figured and one that was never solved.

During the Civil War men had lured other men out of their homes at night only to shoot them as enemies. Some believed in spite of their victims were returning. Others, hardly more fearful, thought there might be repetitions of Civil War days in the mysterious calling. In one part of the country three men sought the source of the bell as they would have searched for a treasure, for they believed that in finding the bell they would find a pot of gold.

Connected with the pot of gold there is another story, related to the bell's tinkles.

When he died, shortly before the Civil War, there was no one with him, as far as any information ever disclosed. The pot of gold was missing. What became of it is the question that caused the neighborhood to search for many days.

Three men living near the old man made numerous searches for the treasure. It was the "Golden Grail" of their working hours and urged them to make further search by appearing to them in dreams. The men searched and searched—and died without having found the source of the tinkling bell, the men which was to have made them wealthy with the treasure which they believed would be discovered with the finding of the bell.

The belled buzzard, found near the places where a faint bell, almost as faint as today's memories of its existence are, tinkled 50 years ago, may solve one of the mysteries—or it may not.

England-Egypt-India Air Mail Service Is Planned
Planes Are Now in Operation Between Cairo and Bagdad, and Bagdad and Karachi.
Correspondence of the Associated Press.
CAIRO, Egypt, May 13.—The inauguration of an air mail service between Cairo and Bagdad and between the latter city and Karachi, giving a through India-Egypt service, is making Egypt the center of England's imperial air communications just as the Suez Canal has been in the past the center of Britain's seaways.

It is understood that the next step, England to Egypt, soon will be taken. This will give through air service from England to India.

There is also a rumor that, owing to the widespread dissatisfaction prevailing in both England and Egypt with regard to the inferior facilities now offered by the postoffice, a service of flying boats between Alexandria and Brindisi will be inaugurated, the mails being by rail between Brindisi and Paris and again by air between Paris and London.

'NO MACHINE SHALL OWN ONE HAIR OF BILL KNAPP'S HEAD' Opponent of Herrick in Race for Congress Sends Out Announcement to Voters.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok.—Manuel Herrick, representative of the Eighth Oklahoma district in Congress, has a new opponent in the primary race; a man, like Herrick in one respect at least, who comes from the "grass roots." He is W. E. Knapp of Afton, Okla. County. In his announcement Knapp asks the voters to permit him to defer a hand-shaking campaign until after harvest and also a full statement of his views on public questions until his wheat is in the bin.

For the moment he sends this announcement to the voters: "If I am elected, I am not a person, nor set of persons, nor corporation, and no class or political machine shall own one hair of Bill Knapp's head. If I must sacrifice my body on the altar of lust and greed, and compromise my honor and integrity, to be elected, I don't want your support, and I don't want your vote, and I don't want your office!"

TWO TAGORE PLAYS WILL BE PRODUCED IN FRENCH CAPITAL

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.
PARIS, May 15.—When Rabindranath Tagore was in Paris last year it was proposed to produce some of his dramatic works at the Vieux Colombine. The plan did not materialize at the time, but Paris is now to be given an opportunity of seeing some of the poet's work, as two of his plays—"Chitra" and the "King of the Dark Room"—are to be given at the Nouveau Theatre. Special care is being given to the production, real Indian robes having been procured for the company. This is the first time that a play by Rabindranath Tagore will have been given in France, although his works are very widely read here.

LABOR COUNCIL NOT TO FIGHT CORONADO RULING

Program for Overcoming Supreme Court Decision to Be

By the Associated Press.
CINCINNATI, O., June 16.—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor, considering the Supreme Court decision in the celebrated Coronado coal case, which held labor unions liable for damages under the Sherman anti-trust law, decided to propose no program for overcoming the decision, leaving this question for a special policy committee.

By the vote of every delegate the convention endorsed the nationwide coal strike that since April 1 has kept a half million miners from work, and also indicated, by a demonstration, its approval of the threatened walkout of more than 1,000,000 railroad workers. Loud cheers came from all parts of the hall when J. M. Jewell, president of the railway employees' department of the Federation, told the convention that the rail union chiefs would not interfere to stop a strike.

"It is believed," declared Jewell, "that the membership is prepared to meet the test, and if they so decide their decisions will be complied with."

NO MORE GAY LIFE, DODGE WORKS HARD IN MOTOR FACTORY

Son of Founder of Automobile Plant Rises at 6 Each Morning and Labors at Wood Lathe.

FRIENDS THINK BRIDE BROUGHT CHANGE

Young Man Is Making Good His Promise to Learn All Branches of Father's Automobile Business.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
DETROIT, Mich., June 16.—Horace E. Dodge, millionaire son of the founder of the Dodge Bros. Motor Co., whose escapades furnished early morning thrills for Detroiters some time ago, has gone to work in earnest.

Young Dodge is daily proving that he has the same faculty for things mechanical that his father had, and has gone to work in the Dodge plant and expects to learn the business from the ground up.

A few months ago he appeared at the plant early one morning and announced that he was ready to go to work. The officials, of course, had little to say where he would work and expected he would take a place in the office and try to learn the factory from there. But Horace elected the factory and set to work to learn the rudiments of the automobile industry.

For weeks his friends scoffed and laughed at his ambition, declaring that he would never "stick to it" as he liked the high life too much, but eight months have passed and every morning when the whistle blows at the big Dodge factory the millionaire is in line with the other workers and takes his place after punching the clock—and he is docked if he is late.

Ascribe Change to Bride.
Friends of Dodge are astonished at the change in him; and back of it all is seen the hand of his bride. When he was married last summer he announced that he was through with "high life" for good and ready to go to work, and after he returned from his honeymoon trip to Europe he made good his word.

Dodge declared today that the millions left the family by his father are not going to be a barrier to his education in the automobile industry.

"I thought I knew the factory pretty well," he said when seen at his straight-backed bench in the wood-turning department, before a huge lathe, "but I am finding what a tremendous lot there is still to learn. It hasn't been so long since I used to bring my bicycle into the factory and ride all over to see what was going on. It has always fascinated me and I really wanted to get into the work long ago—but they thought I should stay in college."

"I guess I must have inherited a mechanical turn of mind. I have always liked to tinker with things mechanical. There is nothing so very mysterious to me about a box or automobile."

Had Pay Check Framed.
When Dodge got his first check he promptly cashed it, then made a trip to the office and got the cashier to give him the canceled voucher, and that hangs today, neatly framed, in the Dodge mansion on Grosse Pointe.

Asked about his duties in the factory he said: "My principal duty, and my hardest is rolling out of bed at 6 a. m. It takes a fight, sometimes, but I manage to get there. Thus far I have worked only in the metal, wood and pattern departments, and they will only let me work on a few machines. I want to try them all, but my boss tells me that is against the rules—that I might get hurt and all those things."

It is Dodge's intention to work in every department of the factory if it takes him years, and there are 100 acres of floor space in the plants and hundreds of departments. Asked whether he would go in the office Dodge said he could not say what his future plan would be, whether he would take an executive place or confine himself to things mechanical.

CHILE-PERU CONFERENCE UNCERTAIN OF OUTCOME

Hughes Expected to Make No Move Not Welcomed by Both Sides.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 16.—The Chilean Peruvian conference here again lapsed today into a period of uncertainty just when success had seemed almost within reach.

Chilean Ambassador Mathieu had an appointment at noon to lay the situation before Secretary Hughes but previous indications that the visit would lead to a move to resume the negotiations under American guidance had been somewhat clouded by the developments of the past 24 hours.

There were intimations that other unexpected developments would find their way into the negotiations to still further complicate the situation. In some quarters it was hinted that an entire new face must be put upon the whole situation before the end of the day.

The hitch which resulted in postponement of Ambassador Mathieu's

State Department visit yesterday was not fully expected in Chilean circles.
Dr. Porras' assertion that the Chilean Foreign Minister had correctly stated the present status of the negotiations, and his declaration that the Chileans had receded on the much debated point of a plebiscite in Tacna, Arica aroused much speculation as to just what basis for resumption of the discussions could possibly be agreed upon.

At the State Department there was every indication that Secretary Hughes was willing to be of whatever service he thought practicable. There was every sign that he would make no direct or formal move until convinced both sides would welcome it.

Willard-Dempsey Return Match A Joke; Jess, Age 39, Has Fought 13 Rounds in Last Seven Years

Tom-Toms in Far West Are Beating the Call to Another "Championship" Battle—Former Titleholder Surely a Glutton for Punishment if He Consents to Battle Jack Again.

By John E. Wray,
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Taking at face value the statement that he is willing to fight Jack Dempsey, we hereby pronounce Jess Willard the world's champion glutton for punishment. Toledo was not enough for Jess.

But it was for those ringers who, huddled at the bottom of that white-hot crucible at Toledo, July 4, 1919, fairly shivered as they saw Dempsey's blows crash with fearsome thuds against the jaw and quivering torso of the dazed and silly-looking giant, battering him to the floor seven times in one round.

Now will they forget the picture Willard presented, one side of his head swollen and red as raw meat, refusing stolidly to budge from his corner at the bell's summons for the fourth round. "They cannot forget that, unwilling to shock the spectators by a full view of the devastation wrought by Dempsey, the seconds bound up Willard's battered visage with a towel, leaving a peep-hole for his good eye, and led him wavering up the aisle to his automobile."

It was several days before Willard could depart from Toledo and it was weeks before he was himself again. Now, three years later, he appears willing to take all this again and more—for he is three years further down the toboggan and three more years out of practice. If that isn't indifference to punishment, cite us one better.

Just a Ballyhoo Match.

Yet this match is now being smoked up in California by Jack Kearns, Jack Dempsey and Willard. To judge by the preliminary ballyhoo being sent out, the effort is a concerted one to bring Willard and Dempsey together with a twofold view—to thwart the New York Boxing Commission and prevent a body from forcing Dempsey to meet Willa, and to have Jack Rickard for declining to make Dempsey a $500,000 guarantee his next title fight.

Floyd Fitzsimmons, who already has arranged a number of ballyhoo championships, is expected to put on the fight at Michigan City, Ind., Labor day. If the match is made, and carried out, it will be over more deserving of censure than the Mike-Dempsey fight, which Fitzsimmons a year ago put on—a bout in which Mike was a loser before it began.

A Willard-Dempsey fight now is purely a pot-boiler. Willard, never a first-class fighter, even in his prime, has fought but 13 rounds since April 5, 1915, when he took the title from a worn-out, fat, punchless old negro, who, as long as his strength lasted, swatted Willard to a standstill.

Out of the game for seven years, practically 39 or more years old and past the training age; never a boxer and even doubtful as a hitter, what chance has Willard against the virile young Dempsey? Dempsey's first well-directed blow should render Willard helpless, at his age.

Jess declares he was overconfident and not trained for the Dempsey fight. Yet he had months of notice, sent out stories of his preliminary and intensive training, and, before the fight, declared himself in the best condition it was possible for him to attain.

Some place along the line, either then or now, Old Man Truth seems to have taken to the bottom of the well and remained there.

Willard Capable of Better Bout Than in 1919, Kearns Says

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 16.—Expressing the belief that Jess Willard would make a better opponent for Jack Dempsey today than he did three years ago at Toledo, Jack Kearns, manager of Champion Jack Dempsey, departed for the East today. He expects to meet Floyd Fitzsimmons of Michigan City, who promoted the Mike-Dempsey, the Leonard-White and other title bouts, and discuss a Willard-Dempsey return bout.

Willard, Kearns and Dempsey have been exchanging compliments in interviews here, and the tom-toms are beating the call to another battle between them.

Word is going about that Dempsey wants to tie up with either Willard or Brennan, or both, so that he can tell the New York Commission that previous engagements prevent him from fighting Harry Wills.

Why Willard wants to fight nobody knows, unless he needs the money.

Shocker in Hospital Taking Treatment for Old Injury to His Leg

U R B A N S H O C K E R, star right-hander of the Browns, is in St. John's Hospital, receiving treatment for a leg injury which has been bothering him all season and which became acute when the New York Yankees maltreated him in the first two games of the recent series. Shocker complained after the Sunday game that the injury had bothered him and Business Manager Bob Quinn immediately ordered him to the hospital.

"Of course we'll miss Shocker," said Bob, "but if we have a one-pitcher ball club it is time to find it out. It is not right for a man to hobble around on an injured leg and so Shocker will stay in the hospital until he recovers."

Since Shocker went to the hospital the Browns have won four games, Pruet winning two, Danforth one and Davis one.

Tilden to Play In Chicago Meet

World's Champ, With Wiener, Richards and Others, to Appear.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Well known tennis players from other cities, led by World's Champion William Tilden of Philadelphia, will compete in the annual Illinois State championship tournament to be played over the hard courts of the Skokie Country Club, June 26 to July 2. Tilden, last week, gave the committee his assurance that he would be on hand for the events, and would play through the doubles with his new youthful protegee, "Sandy" Weiner.

This led, one of the most promising boy experts developed in the country since Vincent Richards made his first spectacular cleanup in the world of racket sharps, will make the trip west to compete in the Junior and boys' events, which will be part of the Illinois championships.

"Vinny" Richards, who now ranks No. 3 on the national rating, is another Easterner who plans to invade the Glencoe tournament with the determination to put his skill against that of a wider field than might appear in an early season event on courts in the East.

Julius Sagolowsky of Indianapolis, the national boys' champion of 1922, will be on the scene to test his prowess against young Weiner, and a bevy of star local youngsters, led by George Lett, the University High School player, will dispute claims of the visiting boy experts to pre-eminence.

Ralph Burdick of Indianapolis, Walter Westbrook of Detroit, and such local reprobates as Walter Hayes, Alex Squair, Jerry and Jimmy Weber, and probably Lucien Williams, now at Yale, will speed up the plan even in the earliest rounds.

LONDON, June 16.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, the American lawn tennis woman champion, was defeated in the semi-finals of the Kent Tennis championship in women's singles at Beckenham today by Miss Kathleen McKane, the British star. The score was 6-1, 2-6, 6-3.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan of Santa Monica, California, also playing in the semifinals defeated Mrs. Beaumont, England, 6-6, 6-3.

EARL CADDOCK WILL MEET JIMMY LONDOS AT MOBERLY, JULY 4

MOBERLY, Mo., June 16.—Earl Caddock, former heavyweight wrestling champion, will meet Jimmy Londos of St. Louis here July 4 in a match advertised as deciding the light-heavyweight title. The winner has been promised a match with "Strangler" Lewis.

The two men are about equal in weight and in their only engagement have wrestled for two hours without either gaining a fall. This match, which was wrestled at San Francisco, was given to Caddock by a referee's decision.

Mantell Throws Trout.

EL PASO, Tex., June 16.—Dutch Mantell of Eldorado, Kan., last night defeated Bill Trout of Kokomo, Ind., in straight falls in a wrestling match. The men are waterweights.

DETROIT GETS YOUNG STAR FROM INDIANA

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., June 16.—Paul Schanlaub, four years star first sacker of the Wabash College nine, departed last night to join the Detroit Americans following the second of two games with Indiana University. Schanlaub has hit at considerably better than a .300 clip during his four years on the Wabash nine and has maintained an almost perfect fielding average even under the wild throws of the collegiate infielders.

The Tigers came from behind and beat the Yanks for the second time in succession, 2 to 1. Stoner and Pausa holding the champions to four hits.

New Traps Body For Englishmen

Organization Modeled Along Lines of American Association.

The British trapshooters are no longer working under the Government of the English Clay Bird Shooting Association, that organization having passed away after a long and useful career. In its stead a real live body of active amateur trapshooters have formed a new organization to take care of trapshooting matters in Great Britain. Its title of "British Trapshooting Association" explaining clearly the objects of the organization and closely following the title of the U. S. governing body in trapshooting circles—the American Trapshooting Association.

The British authorities have also adopted practically as a whole the constitution and general modus operandi of the American body, and have paid that organization the compliment of deciding to shoot under the trapshooting rules of the A. T. A. as revised this year, and now in use at all tournaments in this country. The only difference of any importance between the British rules and those of this country being that over there they still stick to the right load of shot (one and one-eighth of shot), as against the American 1 1/4 ounce.

Another special feature which shows that the British are approving of the U. S. plan of action is that they have adopted the system of shooting at registered (or "nationalized") targets from which a shooter's handicap will be fixed.

DEMPEY UNWILLING TO MEET HARRY WILLS, IS TEX RICKARD'S BELIEF

NEW YORK, June 16.—Declaring that he is unconvinced of Jack Dempsey's sincerity in his declared willingness to meet Harry Wills, negro challenger, in a match for the heavyweight championship, Tex Rickard, sports promoter, last night said he was not impressed with the prospect of such a bout this summer or fall.

"I will say right now that Dempsey will never get $100,000 from me for fighting Wills or anybody else," the promoter declared. "If he boxes for me he will work on a percentage and if he gets $100,000 he will be doing well."

The promoter added that he had the same sentiment as regards "extraneous" guarantees in the case of Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion.

How to Look Your Best For June Events

Simple Rules for Beautifying the Complexion and Hair.

By Doris Doecher.

WEDDINGS, garden parties, outdoor festivals of all kinds—June is the month for all of them. If there is ever a time in the course of the entire year when you want to look your best, it is certainly this gala month. If this month does not contain that one big momentous event in your life, your own wedding, you will certainly be an attendant, or bridesmaid at the wedding of one of your friends, or at least you are going to some sort of a garden party or a June festival.

For these occasions I am going to whisper a few beauty secrets in your ear so that when you are arrayed in all of your June finery there will be nothing to spoil the effect and you will certainly be a PERFECT PICTURE.

First let us consider your hair. If it is bobbed you will either put it up on curlers or have a marcel. But if it is long it is necessary to have it shampooed a few days before the occasion. Then it will not be so soft as not to stay in place and yet will be clean and fluffy enough to make into any becoming style.

Brush the hair thoroughly, air it, and if you are one of those fortunate people who have naturally curly hair you need not think any more about it. If your hair takes a curl readily, just slightly moistening and putting up small strands on curlers during the time that you are treating the face and neck is usually sufficient time to have the hair come out in a beautiful way.

After you have disposed of the hair on curlers, put a soft band of cheese cloth across the top of the head and around the hair line, with the hair well brushed away from the face, so that none of the preparations you put on the face will get into the hair. Be sure and choose your most comfortable kimono or other loose lounging robe so that as soon as you place on the treatment you will be free to lie down for at least one-half hour. Allow nothing to distract you during the time you have the preparation on your face. This is extremely important.

Now you are ready for a good cleansing. Go over the entire face, neck and hands with warm water and a mild soap. In fact, enjoy a good scrubbing. After this rinse the face in warm water. Take a hand water, spread a cloth in it, ring out and hold on the neck and face for a second. This opens the pores so that they are ready to receive the following treatment.

There is a very simple beauty mask that can be made and has been used by many famous beauties the world over. It is healing and cleansing and removes little wrinkles; in fact, it is a wonderful beautifier and best of all it is extremely inexpensive and within the reach of every one. Take a good fresh egg. Separate it and retain the white. Put this in a large enough container so that you can slightly whip it with a fork. Squeeze into this the juice of a lemon, beating the white. The lemon will cut the egg. Beat just long enough to make it slightly frothy. After the hot towel has been held on the face for a moment, entirely cover the face and neck with this preparation, rubbing well in. This must be allowed to dry on the face. The object of a beauty mask is two-fold. It stops the pores up with a cleansing agent, which brings the circulation to the face, and when the beauty mask is removed, skin impurities are removed with it. But it also holds the face in a mask and if the face is allowed to relax during the time the mask is setting, it helps to take out the taut look from the face and leaves the face with a very youthful appearance because the tired look and fatigued lines disappear. Remember, old age and fatigue have a tendency to give the face a downward droop. So in applying the mask use an upward stroke, so that, as it settles, you will overcome this condition. Take advantage at this time to place some soothing, whitening lotion on the hands and arms and don't forget the elbow I have already given you many of them.

After you are through applying the mask the hands should be greased and a pair of loose gloves slipped on. Now you are ready for your beauty rest. During this period you should do no reading, as the eyes need care as well. Now lie down perfectly flat with no pillow under your head. Disperse with all distracting thoughts and just let every muscle in the face and body relax. Maintain this position until the face mask has completely dried. This varies to a certain degree. When the tight-drawn sensation becomes uncomfortable it is time to remove the mask, which is easily done with a little warm water.

After the face mask is removed if the face is dry and sensitive a little soothing lotion or cold cream may be applied. Then all traces of the mask should be removed. The freckle-fighting cream of good cold water to which a drop or two of benzoin have been added, or, better yet, a piece of ice rubbed over the entire face and neck. Benzoin is extremely gratifying. The face is now ready for a dusting of powder, which should be evenly applied so as not to be at all noticeable.

After you have disposed of the hair on curlers, put a soft band of cheese cloth across the top of the head and around the hair line, with the hair well brushed away from the face, so that none of the preparations you put on the face will get into the hair. Be sure and choose your most comfortable kimono or other loose lounging robe so that as soon as you place on the treatment you will be free to lie down for at least one-half hour. Allow nothing to distract you during the time you have the preparation on your face. This is extremely important.

Fashion News Notes

PARIS.—Transparent cloaks are worn with almost every costume intended for formal occasions. Though these filmy capes of chiffon, there is, to be sure, an infinite amount of decorative grace. Monkey fur and feather edgings ornament these wraps. One costume of sand crepe de chine, veiled in sand silk lace and itself veiling an underdress of black satin, had the slightest possible cape of sand chiffon delicately edged with wisps of black monkey fur.

LONDON.—Pale yellow georgette over white, the georgette embroidered with white soutache braid, is one of the popular combinations of the moment. The yellow is not so deep as the dent de lion of early spring, nor yet so faint as the semitony which came into fashion recently. It is more a lemon yellow, very refreshing and summery in appearance and appearing its best when contrasted with clear white. With these gowns, which are usually made of organdie, go hats in the same shade, of crinoline trimmed with fair sized silk sunflowers in a deeper tone.

NEW YORK.—It is not necessary today to have a bridal gown of heavy satin, glorious though that material always is. Some of the June brides will be married in white organdie inset with fine lace—valenciennes is the favorite—the organdie mounted over white taffeta. For a wedding at the country estate, organdie is particularly suitable. Mask-veils are being used, the kind that hang to the tip of the bride's nose. The Dutch cap is still a favorite head-dress, and a glint of silver on the veil is almost compulsory.

LONDON.—There is a perfect craze for reviving the styles of the eighteenth and the nineteenth centuries. In hats this is particularly noticeable. The newest chapeaux, the pictures sort, are direct copies of some of the luscious hats perched immortally on the heads of Gainsborough and Romney beauties. Once upon a time it was the custom to laugh lightly at the enormous headgear of a Gainsborough belle. Nowadays, however, the garden party hats are almost as large as any which that artist painted, and in gorgeous coloring and materials they yield to no century since hat history dawned.

PARIS.—Tiny shoulder straps of pearl and metal are used on some of the summer lingerie instead of ribbons that so easily wrinkle and soil. The new strap also there came into existence, the thin silver or gold cord, replacing the ribbon shoulder strap. The idea of the silver or gold cord or chain was that it would be invisible. Not so the pearl and metal straps. The more these are seen, the better, from the Parisienne's standpoint. And in truth these trimmings form an extremely dainty adjunct to the summer costume.

ATLANTIC CITY.—Among the bathing novelties seen on the beach these days are figured bathing suits, in shades of blue, green and brilliant decorations. The parasols with the cigarette case in its handle is also with us, a bright and snappy affair that attracts the proper amount of attention whenever it is flat, disk top is snapped back and the cigarette extracted. Paper Japanese parasols are in evidence likewise and add a bizarre and lovely touch.

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

What Is So Rare?
Did you ever feel like going where the tangled grasses lie, where the singing brook is flowing and a purple haze is glowing off against the evening sky? Did you ever want to follow past the farthest, fairest hill, past the willows in the hollow; sailing like a swift-winged swallow where the world lies hushed and still? Did you ever think of leaving all the worry and the fret, all the heartache and the grieving, all the scheming and the plotting, the folly and the regret? Then I know the road you're wanting. I can lead you where it winds, past the black-eyed Susans flaunting, where the wind's voice, sweet and haunting, sings of joy that never fades. Far beyond the grief and pity of the endless human tide, ebbing, flowing in the city, out where bluebirds sing their ditty and the snow-white clouds ride. Out where poplars, tall and slender, stand like sentinels at ease, where the great oaks rise in splendor, and the wild rose, fair and tender, whispers to the passing breeze. That's the road you would be taking where at eve the crescent moon, all Earth's garish spots forsaking, dances where the waves are breaking on the laughing brook—in June. There the mocking-bird is singing all of rapture, all of bliss, all of the joy that never fades; till his song in measures ringing something scarce of earth is bringing to the beauty of the night, would you leave the weary masses for a world that's all in tune? Follow where the old lane passes, hidden in the tangled grasses, out into the night—in June!

GAY PAYS A VISIT.

Chapter 24.

The woman's face told him that he had guessed correctly and her words confirmed it.

"Donald, I will never be his wife—that I swear! I loathe him. My sanctor says—"

Donald got up. Suddenly he felt a great pity for this woman. Her slavery was not to be measured by contempt. She was doomed and the only gate to freedom for her was the grave.

He did not realize, however, that while she still dragged out her cruelly miserable existence she was a great power for harm. She was young, rich, beautiful; she was dangerously mad, although no physician could as yet qualify her as such.

She was a victim, that saddest of all creatures in a civilized country where slavery comes from within, a created individual choice of the enslaved one.

"It's finished, Gay. There is nothing I can do. If you're still a grain of sense you'll put yourself into Middleton's hands. That's the best advice I can give you."

With that he left her. Stanhope's triumph was short-lived. His downfall began with a deluge of servants' gossip which could not be despised or passed over as it might have been in the old days. Phelps, the dismissed lady's maid, had a distinct grievance and aired it to a friend of hers who happened to hold a responsible position on the police force. She mentioned Dr. Middleton's name, and that eminent nerve specialist, taking no chances with his reputation.

To hush up the details of this curiously postponed wedding was impossible. They leaked out in every direction. The registrar's clerk made a discovery. It was a newspaper reporter, scenting unusual copy, who gave Stanhope the clue to beat it hard and fast out of England while the going was still fairly good.

He took his revenge with him, as far as Gay Desmond was concerned. She was left high and dry, a wife but no wife, a slave to drugs and utterly broken when deprived of their mastery.

The woman looked like being cured by sheer force of circumstances, and things might have turned out very differently had she been poor or of less positive appetites.

She took to prowling about in holes and corners of the great metropolis. Many small fish had escaped the net that the police were drawing in. Gay caught one of these.

He was a rat-eyed little tobacco-smoker named Rabinowky in Theobald's road, and she had come upon him quite by chance, for hand-in-hand with her craving for drugs went an insatiable desire to spy upon Donald Trail.

Rabinowky recognized her for what she was, as readily as one of the gay colors would recognize his brother. After she had bought a package of cheap cigarettes from him he proffered other wares.

Gay now felt triumphant. She was all ready with her money when he returned with his threats and demands. She was no longer dependent upon him and she felt elated at the prospect of defying him.

Her mind had been concentrated for a long time on the hunt for drugs, but Donald still held his place in it and her curiosity concerning him became too great to be borne.

The second time she came to Rabinowky's she walked through Grey's Inn enclosure and looked up at his windows, which told her nothing. Then a brilliant idea occurred to her. She would pay a visit to her old friend Joyce.

Gay did not know that Joyce had been married and was now living with her husband at the Harbour House. She went first to the little shop which had blossomed out tremendously.

She entered the shop ostensibly to price a negligee. Neither Joyce nor Millie came forward to serve her, but a strange girl in black silk, who had the deferential manner of the experienced saleswoman.

After a few questions Gay learned a lot of things; that Miss St. Clair was now Mrs. Maclean and that Miss Sayres had had a bad accident from which she was making a slow recovery at her sister's house. Obtaining the address of Harbour House, Gay betook herself thither.

Her lips curled contemptuously as she thought of Joyce in the role of a good Samaritan's wife. This Terence Maclean must be a singularly simple young man. Very likely he imagined that he had made a reformed character of happy-go-lucky Joyce. Well, of course, Joyce was clever.

The reflections brought Gay to Harbour House, where she informed that Mrs. Maclean was in, and she was shown to a small but cozy sitting room on the first floor.

of each other and settled down. "What do you do?"

"I take the kindergarten every afternoon. That is, I'm learning. We modeled in clay today. It's great fun. The children are too amusing. But tell me about yourself? So you fitted the nice Preacher Man and married that beast Stanhope. Forgive me—I shouldn't speak like that of your husband."

Gay's eyes glittered viciously.

"Is a heart? Who told you I'd married him? Donald, I suppose."

"No, Maj. Ritchie told me. I ran into him in Bond street the other day. Since Millie has been laid up I have to trot out to the West End occasionally in the pretense of her shop. She had a bad accident!"

Joyce went on to tell of Millie's accident, but that now Millie was almost well. She had been out for walks recently. And then Joyce's manner became slightly confused and embarrassed.

Gay's unnaturally stimulated brain leaped to the obvious conclusion.

"Do you ever see Donald Trail?" she managed to ask with an air of indifference.

"Every day," Joyce replied. "I know it!" Gay exclaimed vehemently. "It's—it's that sister of yours!"

"Well," Joyce said, "why should that bother you? You made a perfect fool of him and you've got the husband you obviously wanted. I know how one hates to lose an old admirer, but we women really must learn to play fair. You didn't want Donald, yourself!"

"I never wanted anybody else!" Gay cried.

She was so excited that the barriers went down and in a moment she was telling Joyce everything that had happened. For once in her life she was truthful, mainly because she could not believe in Joyce's regeneration. Joyce had not reformed, she was merely clever. All this—the basket of socks, the crochets, the kitchen, the modeling in clay with children—this was all sheer affectation. Or, perhaps, Joyce loved this queer person-person she had married, and used every device to blind him to her secret weakness.

"I am very sorry for you," Joyce said gently, "when she had finished her terrible story." "But if you'd only give up the beastly thing! Think of your dear little children. Their father's people would welcome you, even though you've put yourself out of court. And children, Joyce, are wonderful. Gay. You never took the trouble to get acquainted with yours."

"I know it's hard, but it can be done. I've been through it, Gay, and I know how hard it is. Will you let me help you?"

Gay stared at her defiantly.

"You talk like a rat! Give up what?"

"Drugs!"

"Nonsense! I never touch them, now."

"You've just told me—"

Gay laughed until the tears rolled down her cheeks.

"What a sufferer you are, Joyce! I never expected to sit and listen to such drivel from you. Why can't you be frank with me?"

"I am—perfectly frank."

She hesitated a moment and then went on. "It was sheer elemental shock, Gay, that showed me the horror I was becoming. I saw myself naked and I had the grace to be more than ashamed. You see, it was my own brave, good little sister and I had done my part in throwing Jack Stanhope across her path. That's what drugs did for me, Gay. I must have had a sane moment when the flash of realization struck me. I nearly killed me."

"You had much the same sort of shock. You had to decide definitely all in a moment, what you would do. The love for Donald wasn't a strong enough motive. That's why I say, think of your children. Most particularly of Amariyllis. She'll grow up, a lovely thing, and there will be no part in her life of the horror that's been."

Gay rose and began to draw on her gloves.

"My dear Joyce, you are a great disappointment. I came for sympathy and I got a lecture. The children are quite happy, and so am I."

"Is Donald going to marry?"

"Oh, hello, Gay! I've just finished a world for today. Lucky you didn't turn up sooner."

"Your 'stunt'!" Gay inquired after she had returned the greeting and the former friends had taken stock

HELPS FOR THE MOTHER

MUCH of the desire for sweets is really the fault of mothers. At the table the child will be admonished to eat everything on his plate or he will get no dessert. He will be told if he is a good boy he can have chocolate cake for his supper. Candy is promised as a reward for the accomplishment of some task. Ice cream is a medium for another bribe. Is it a wonder children look upon these articles as something especially good? It is not surprising that this idea, coupled with a natural liking for sweets, establishes a craving for them.

Digestive disturbances should receive immediate attention during the warm weather. If this takes the form of diarrhea in infants, reduce the milk in the formula, boil all the milk and omit sugar. For older children

"When?"

"Very shortly. In about three weeks."

Some Unusual and Delicious Beet Recipes.

BEETS are a valuable vegetable, and they are not served in as many ways as they might be by the ordinary home cook. Young best-tops make excellent greens, and when thinning out the bed to give the beets room to expand, the wee beets may be cooked tops and all, then they may be chopped and planned, after the manner of spinach, and served with a sour-cream sauce.

Beets are considered healthy, and if served in a variety of ways they are bound to grow more popular than when just boiled with butter sauce or pickled.

Beet Relish.
This relish is very good with hot meats. Boil a bunch of beets in the usual way, rubbing off the skins under cold water, then chop the beets as fine as possible, add salt, pepper, two tablespoons each of sugar and freshly grated horseradish, mix thoroughly, and set aside to flavor. When ready to serve drain the mixture, and if required, add a little more sugar, and it is ready to use.

Escaloped Beets.
Boil, peel and chop a bunch of beets. Make a rich cream sauce, about two cupsful, and put in the beets and two hard-boiled eggs which have been put through the ricer. Add two tablespoons of very dry crumbs. Fill buttered ramekins with the mixture, sprinkle the tops with grated American or English sharp cheese and bake as usual.

Beet and Sole Salad.
Boil, peel and dice a bunch of beets. Take two large filets of sole, boil them for 10 minutes, cool and slice them, and mix them with the beet, then add a small cupful of chopped celery, a tablespoonful of washed capers, the juice of a large onion, and a quarter-cupful of well-seasoned French dressing. Let the mixture stand 10 minutes. Rub the inside of the salad-bowl with a cut bulb of garlic, cut a few leaves of the salad with the scissors, then toss the salad with a suitable amount of mayonnaise to moisten it properly. Garnish with egg and olive rings.

Beet Tourte.
Boil, peel and chop one bunch of your beets, not too fine. Make a rich cream sauce and put the beets into it, seasoning with pepper, salt, sugar, a tablespoonful of bacon fat and a tablespoonful of finely-chopped white celery leaves. Make a good piecrust, roll out thin and cut into four-inch squares. Fill the squares with a tablespoonful of the beet mixture, fold like a turnover, pinch the edges, and lay in a buttered baking dish. Bake until the crust is done, then serve hot with the meat course.

A Hot Beet Salad.

Boil, peel and slice a bunch of beets and set them in a dish to keep warm. Make a sauce of a half-cupful each of vinegar and water, a tablespoonful of sugar, pepper, salt and a heaping tablespoonful of butter. Melt together, and when hot thicken with a teaspoonful of cornstarch moistened in a little water. When it boils up turn into the beet-pan and stir until thick and smooth. Wipe the salad-bowl with a cut bulb of garlic, line with lettuce leaves, dip the beets in the dressing, then pour the rest over them. Put a boiled egg which has been run through the ricer over the top of the salad.

CHEESE TOAST.

SIX slices of white bread, half a cup Swiss or American cheese, grated; salt and red pepper to taste. Spread the slices of bread with the cheese and press together like a sandwich; fry a golden brown in hot fat; serve immediately.

No. 150.—To Tell a Card by Its Weight.

Ask someone to choose a card from the pack. State that every card weighs differently, and that you can always tell a card again after you have tested its weight. Balance the card in your hands for a moment, then replace it in the pack and shuffle the pack. Pick up the cards one by one, and thoughtfully "weigh" each one, until finally you are able to stop at the card selected. In "testing" the card, you secretly put a dent near one corner, with your finger nail. Thus when you "weigh" the cards one by one, you can tell instantly when you have the chosen card. The little "bump" of "weight" the cards leads the spectators off the track.

THE SPEEDER'S LAMENT.

BEN FRANKLIN said—Perhaps you've read—
That haste makes waste, and yet, again,
I never tried
To slow my stride,
No matter how much time I had;
I thought that speeding the street
Was something that could not be beat.
It saved the use of both my feet,
It was my favorite fad.

But now, alas,
To feed much gas
To my machine, costs too much dough;
The motor cops
Would lick their chops
If they could pinch me on the go;
They'd send me up to Justice Mix.
And mercy on me he'd have, fix—
He'd only say, "Your fine I fix

PERHAPS IT HAD STARTED TO TICK, TOO

IN the war the Fifteenth New York Regiment, colored, of the National Guard, became the 15th Infantry of the A. E. F. and saw considerable active service in front-line trenches in Northern France. Nearly all the commissioned officers were white. One of them, a Captain, who came home as a Major, served for a while as the bombing officer of the regiment. Under him he had a bombing squad of enlisted men.

Behind the lines, before the regiment went up for actual hostilities, he assiduously drilled his squad in the art of throwing hand grenades. For practice the men were given dummy grenades. Religiously, for hours every day, they were schooled. Finally, a time came when the Captain figured his outfit were ready to handle the genuine article. He lined them up, nervous and wide-eyed, and, by way of a beginning, handed to each man a genuine contact bomb, loaded and ready for business. Then, following the ordained ritual, he started to sound the signals.

"At 'One' each man was to set the mechanism in his bomb. At 'Two,' holding it in his right hand, he was to draw it back the full length of his arm. At 'Three' he was to fling it as far as he could in the direction where the enemies' trenches were supposed to be.

"All set, men?" called out the Captain. "Very well, then, make ready. Now, let's go. One!"

Before he could utter the second command a small, black private at the end of the line nearest to him flung his bomb as far as he could send it and it exploded, where it struck, 60 feet away, before his companions had released their missiles.

"Say, there, you, what do you mean by throwing your bomb before the signal for doing so was given?" demanded the Captain. "Haven't you learned anything all these months?"

Cap'n. quavered the offender. "I jest natch'ly couldn't hold on no longer 'en what I did do. W'y, Cap'n, I could feel dat bomb swellin' in my hand."
